NEBRASKA SPELLS "SPORTSMANSHIP"

The University of Nebraska is known and respected all over the nation for its red-attired fans, as well as its football teams.

Nebraska fans also have a nationwide reputation for good sportsmanship, at home and away.

"Big League"—that's the way Nebraska teams and fans have acquitted themselves in past seasons, and that's the same goal for 1987.

The University of Nebraska urges all Husker fans to continue this fine tradition of sportsmanship by extending courtesy to the visiting teams and officials.

All of us on the Cornhusker Staff salute our fans as the greatest in the nation and thank you for your support and sportsmanship.

Yours for Nebraska.

The Huskers have found yet another Heisman hopeful in quarterback Steve Taylor. In three games, Taylor has caught the nation's eye with his strong performance and leadership. In the opener against Utah State, Taylor rushed for 157 yards, the most-ever by an NU quarterback, and scored two touchdowns. He earned Big Eight Player-of-the-Week honors for his efforts against UCLA and was ESPN's Player-of-the-Game, as he tied a Big Eight record with five touchdown passes, and threw for 217 yards. Last week against Arizona State, Taylor rushed for 122 yards and two touchdowns, including the game-winner from three yards out late in the fourth quarter. He was again named the Big Eight Offensive Player-of-the-Week and was ABC's Nebraska Player-of-the-Game.

Nebraska vs. South Carolina

The Scouting Report

by Tom Simons

TODAY: Despite posting impressive victories in the last two outings over then third-ranked UCLA, 42-33 on Sept. 12, and last week at defending Rose Bowl champion Arizona State, 35-28, Coach Tom Osborne's Cornhuskers cannot afford to relax. Nebraska closes out its 1987 non-conference schedule with another outstanding opponent, South Carolina. The Gamecocks come into today with a 2-1-0 mark, which could have easily been 3-0-0 were it not for a frustrating 13-6 loss at Georgia last week. South Carolina was deep in Bulldog territory much of the game, but never managed to get into the end zone, settling for two field goals. If Todd Ellis, Sterling Sharpe & Co. get untracked today, the Husker defense will be sternly tested. The Gamecocks also boast a defense which has yielded only one touchdown in three games, and gives up an average of just 88.0 yards per game on the ground and 133.0 in the air. Sophomore quarterback Ellis continues to rewrite the South Carolina passing records. He's completed 76 of 131 passes (58.0 percent) for 880 yards and three touchdowns, but he has been intercepted eight times. Sharpe has caught 24 of those passes for 305 yards and a TD. Sophomore running back Harold Green leads the ground attack with 272 yards and four TD's on 60 carries.

THE SERIES: Third meeting and the second appearance by the Gamecocks in Lincoln. Nebraska won both previous games, 28-6 in Lincoln before a then-Memorial Stadium-record 47,800 fans in 1964, and 27-24 at Columbia last year. South Carolina's quarterback in the 1964 game was Dan Reeves, now the head coach of the NFL's Denver Broncos. Nebraska's second touchdown that day came on a 41-yard second-quarter run by junior fullback Frank Solich, who now coaches the Husker running backs.

LAST YEAR: In nearly a carbon copy of last week's Arizona State game, Nebraska overcame intense heat, a large, hostile crowd, and a talented, determined opponent to post a victory by making big plays at the end. The contest featured four lead changes in the fourth quarter, and Nebraska didn't take the lead for good until Steve Taylor hit Todd Millikan with an 11-yard touchdown pass with 1:26 to go—a score set up when Broderick Thomas forced a Gamecock fumble recovered by teammate Brian Davis at the USC 26 with two minutes left. Even then, the game wasn't decided until Husker safety Bryan Siebler picked off a Todd Ellis pass at the Nebraska 10-yard line with 38 seconds left, preserving NU's 27-24 victory.

THE COACHES: The Huskers' Tom Osborne is 140-32-2 in his 15th year as a head coach, all at Nebraska, and his .810 career winning percentage ranks third among active NCAA Division I-A coaches, trailing only Barry Switzer of Oklahoma and Joe Paterno of Penn State. The Gamecock's Joe Morrison is 86-66-7 in his 15th year as a head coach, 25-21-2 in his fifth year at South Carolina. Previously, he coached at Tennessee-Chattanooga from 1973-79 (44-29-4) and New Mexico from 1980-82 (18-15-1). The former New York Giants star had his jersey number (40) retired by the NFL club. Osborne is 1-0-0 vs. Morrison and the Gamecocks.

TAYLOR NEAR MILESTONE: Husker quarterback Steve Taylor comes into today with 946 career rushing yards and needs 54 to become only the second Nebraska player, with Turner Gill, to rush and pass for over 1,000 yards. Taylor has thrown for 1,201.

UNL's Club

formation of mutually beneficial partnerships between UNL, other educational institutions, the State, and the private sector.

As we proceed toward the realization of this goal, UNL will seek to develop more interdisciplinary centers and projects, such as those now underway in applied ethics, food processing, productivity and entrepreneurship, and advanced measurements engineering.

The interdisciplinary approach to complex problems is very much in line with the national trend in research and illustrates an important and distinctive feature of UNL. When dealing with complex problems, UNL is able to draw from the expertise in academic departments across the campus to form interdisciplinary teams to seek solutions.

For example, biotechnology research represents a challenging research frontier with virtually limitless possibilities for either the production of new biological products or the increased production of known products. At present, at least twenty-four UNL faculty members are involved in biotechnology research, including faculty in chemistry, biological sciences, biochemistry, animal science, agronomy, horticulture, plant pathology, and veterinary science. To coordinate and consolidate all of these related activities, we have appointed a new director of biotechnology who will lead the development of a Center for Biotechnology Research at UNL.

The development of interdisciplinary research centers is one of UNL's top priorities for the next decade. With the support of the State and the private sector, UNL will continue to serve as a source of new knowledge and constant discovery for the benefit of all Nebraskans.

ROD SMITH: HUSKER RECEIVER RETURNS WITH SUCCESS

By Bill Doleman

One of the most exciting, yet overlooked plays in football is the punt return. For many teams it is nothing more than the transition between offense and defense. But at Nebraska, the punt return has become an artform.

Cornhusker fans will always remember such return artists as Irving Fryar, Jeff Smith and Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers twisting and turning down the sidelines toward the endzone. In fact, Rodgers owns every school record in that department, except one. Enter Rod Smith.

"For some reason my name is in there now," said Smith, the latest in a long line of Husker return men. "It really is kind of a weird feeling, but it is an honor and one I will definitely remember."

As a junior, Smith returned 12 punts for 227 yards, an average of 18.9 yards per return to set a new school record and lead the nation in that category, a feat even Rodgers never accomplished. It's something that caught Smith by surprise and by chance. An injury to top return man Von Sheppard early in the 1986 season gave him the opportunity to show his worth, one he took advantage of.

"I went into the year not even being on first-team punt return," Smith recalled. "It just seemed like every opportunity I had, the team really did their job and the next thing you know I'm leading the nation when it could have easily been someone else."

But it wasn't. It was Rod Smith, a prime example of the Cornhusker work ethic. Now in his fifth year with the program and having paid his dues, Smith has developed into one of the top split ends in the nation in addition to his skills as a punt returner.

"I try to work hard on all phases of my game," Smith said. "I want to be as complete as I can be."

"Playing freshman ball and then redshirting can be rough, but you have to work to achieve success. When you realize that, it all pays off in the long run."

Despite having to make the adjustment from high school to major college football star, Smith said he never doubted his ability to make it as a Cornhusker.

"I've always believed I was a capable athlete," he said. "I wouldn't have come to Nebraska if I didn't feel I could compete and play at a level that would allow me to be on the field on Saturdays."

"I've had to overachieve at times to make sure that other people knew I was capable of playing."

If there were any doubts in Smith's ability and value to the 1987 team, they were quickly put to rest in the Huskers' first game of this season. On the first play of the game against Utah State, Smith caught a 15-yard pass from quarterback Steve Taylor. Then later in the game, he returned an Aggie kick 80 yards for a touchdown. It was the Huskers' second return for a touchdown of the day. Teammate Dana Brinson scored from 57 yards out earlier in the game.

"That we both had one (touchdown)," Smith said, "just adds to the threat that people consider our punt return team to be one of the most dangerous in the country." Currently, Nebraska leads the nation in punt return average with 25.7 yards per game.

The first game experience also had even more meaning for Smith as a player.

"That was real important to me," he said. "I wanted to have some early success with it (the punt return) so people just didn't think about last year. It made people notice that I can get the job done and last year wasn't just luck." With four returns, Smith is currently second in the nation with 27.8 yards per return.

The Nebraska coaching staff knew Smith was capable of playing when they recruited him out of Thornton (Colo.) High School. The run-oriented Huskers beat out such passing schools as Brigham Young, Stanford and Colorado State for his letter-of-intent in 1983 ("Is that a story or what?" Smith asks). The fact that Nebraska annually fields one of the nation's most powerful ground attacks has helped the sure-handed receiver become a better overall player.

"Being a one-dimensional player is not a successful player," Smith said. "I think my game has improved from being just a receiver. I block better and I put a lot of value on the little things you just don't notice in other receivers. And because of that, the receiver is an important part of our offense."

At no time has the Husker receiving corps been as important as in Nebraska's 42-33 win over UCLA on Sept. 12. Four different players caught touchdown passes, including Smith. It was his over-the-shoulder reception in the third quarter (pictured below) that helped put the Bruins away and serve notice early that this year's team is very serious about a national title.

"We are preparing ourselves for each game," Smith said. "We want to come in with the intensity and tenacity at a level that we are going to win every game. Hopefully a national championship will come out of it."

Having graduated last August with a degree in business administration, Smith has taken a very business-like approach to his final season as a Husker. Possessing great physical ability, Smith has heard from several scouts about a possible career in professional football, an opportunity he would welcome—when the time comes.

"I really wanted to focus on football this year," Smith said. "I want to have a good year for myself and for the team. If there's an opportunity for me to play down the road, I would love it. But just as important, we have a team this year that has the ability to accomplish a goal—which is one of the main reasons I came here—and that's to win it all."

Should the Huskers in fact "win it all," it would be a fitting return for a player like Rod Smith.

Senior split end Rod Smith has scored a touchdown in each of Nebraska's first three games, including this 48-yard reception against UCLA, that helped put the Bruins away. Todd Millikan (No. 43) celebrates as Smith crosses the goal line (right to left.)

Athletic Director Bob Devaney

Bob Devaney ranks as one of the finest football coaches in college history, after his colorful 16-year career at Wyoming and Nebraska, and now ranks as one of the nation's most outstanding athletic directors.

Devaney is in his 26th year of providing drive, leadership and pride in the Cornhusker athletic program. He arrived in 1962, charged with the mission of building a successful football program, and he succeeded far beyond anyone's expectations. During an 11-year stint as Husker football coach, Devaney's teams won 101, lost only 20 and tied two for a winning percentage of .829. His career mark of 136-30-7 (.806) ranked him as the winningest coach in the nation at the time of his retirement in 1973. Devaney's teams won eight Big Eight titles and two consecutive national championships during the 1962-72 span, with his teams going to nine bowl games. He twice won four consecutive Big Eight titles.

Devaney's 1971 team, which posted a 13-0 record and twice played for the national championship (beating Oklahoma, 35-31, in the "Game of the Century," and Alabama, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl), has been hailed as the best college team of all time. Bob was inducted into the National Football Hall of Fame in 1981.

Since becoming athletic director in 1967, Devaney has brought the same success to the overall Husker athletic program that he brought to the football program. Under his leadership, Nebraska annually sets the pace in the Big Eight all-sports race with solid entries in all men's and women's sports.

Under Devaney's guidance, Memorial Stadium has been enlarged, artificial turf has been installed and replaced three times, a Stadium Office building was constructed, and sports facilities such as the Otto and Gladys Baumann Baseball Complex, Buck Beltzer Baseball Stadium, Ed Weir Track and the women's softball stadium have come into being.

It was Devaney's leadership, working in conjunction with the Nebraska Legislature, that resulted in the passage of a special cigarette tax to provide funds for a new athletic complex, the beautiful basketball arena, indoor track, swimming and other sports building which opened on the State Fair Grounds in 1976. University of Nebraska Regents recognized Devaney's contributions to that four-and-a-half-acre structure by naming it the Bob Devaney Sports Center in 1978.

Devaney currently spearheads a fundraising drive to provide the University of Nebraska with a new Faculty-Student Recreation Center, as well as an indoor practice facility.

Devaney received many other honors during his coaching career. He was named Coach of the Year by the Walter Camp Foundation, the Football Writers of America, Football News and the Washington TD Club in 1971; and he was tabbed to coach in numerous all-star games, such as the Hula Bowl, Coaches All-America, Blue-Gray and East-West Shrine. He also coached the College All-Stars against the Dallas Cowboys in the 1972 Chicago game.

A graduate of Alma (Michigan) College in 1939, Devaney served as a high school coach at Big Beaver, Keego Harbor, Saginaw and Alpena in Michigan before joining Biggie Munn and Duffy Daugherty at Michigan State. In 1957 he became head coach at Wyoming, where his teams posted a 35-10-5 record.

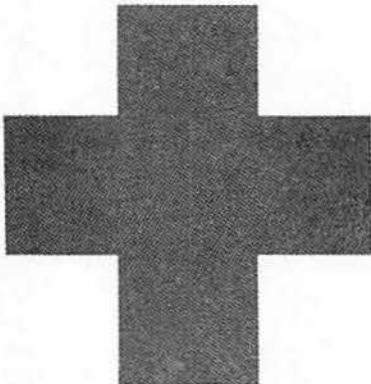

Devaney is married to the former Phyllis Wiley. They have a son, Mike, and a daughter, Pat, both graduates of the University of Nebraska. Bob and Phyllis also have two grandchildren. □

Tom Osborne Head Football Coach/ Assistant Athletic Director

Long established as the premier offensive coach in the nation, Tom Osborne is in his 15th campaign at Nebraska, firmly entrenched as a top candidate for the Football Hall of Fame.

Since taking the reins from Bob Devaney—already enshrined in the Hall of Fame in 1972, Osborne has compiled a remarkable record of 137 wins, 32 losses and two ties. That's a winning percentage of .807, which spells big winner in any league.

More important, perhaps, is a string of 14 consecutive bowl appearances with teams that have won nine or more games. During the past five years, the Huskers have traveled at an .850 clip, posting a 53-9 record. Every one of Tom's teams have wound up in the Top 10 rankings of either the AP or UPI polls, or both, solid testimony of the nation's most consistent college football program.

The Huskers rolled to a 10-2 record in 1986, capped by a 30-15 triumph over LSU in the Sugar Bowl. It was Nebraska's second Sugar Bowl appearance in three years and its 25th bowl appearance overall.

Middle guard Danny Noonan led Husker honor winners in 1986 as a unanimous All-America pick, while defensive end Broderick Thomas was a sophomore All-America selection. Six Huskers were named to the All-Big Eight first team.

Osborne's teams have won the NCAA rushing title four times, finished second twice and third once during the past seven years.

Adding even more luster to Osborne's coaching career is the fact that the Cornhuskers have made history by producing three consecutive Outland Trophy winners (Dave Rimington in 1981 and 1982 and Dean Steinkuhler in 1983) and two consecutive Lombardi winners (Rimington in 1982 and Steinkuhler in 1983), while also winning the 1983 Heisman Trophy (Mike Rozier).

During Tom's 14-year career, the Huskers have produced 28 All-America players and 23 academic All-America players, as well as seven NCAA postgraduate scholarship winners and three National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete recipients.

Under Osborne, Nebraska has extended its string of consecutive Top-10 rankings to 17 and consecutive bowl appearances to 18, the top mark in the nation.

Only two Osborne-coached teams have finished lower than second in the Big Eight—the 1976 team which tied for fourth, but only one game out of a first-ever three-way tie for first, and last year's 10-2 team, which lost to Colorado and Oklahoma. His teams have won or shared the conference title six times in the past 11 years (1975, 1978, 1981, 1982, 1983 and 1984).

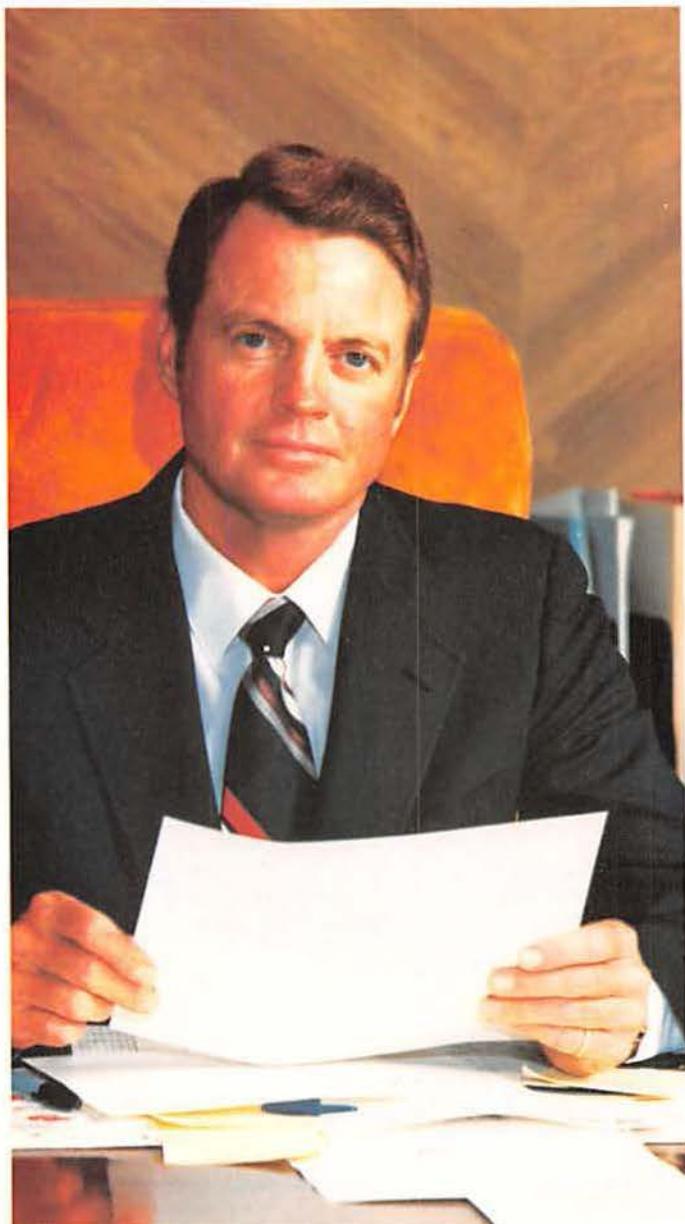

He has three times been named Big Eight coach of the year (1975, 1978 and 1980), and four times been named District VI coach of the year by the American Football Coaches Association and Kodak (1978, 1979, 1980 and 1983). In addition, in 1978 he was named Bobby Dodd's national coach of the year by the Atlanta Quarterback Club and Delta Air Lines for his efforts toward the advancement of the higher and more notable aspects of college coaching. And in 1983, Football News named Osborne national coach of the year.

In 1982, he was the first recipient of the Distinguished Nebraskan Award from the Nebraskaland Foundation, and in 1983 he was named national coach of the year by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Osborne, who graduated from Hastings College in 1959 before logging pro time with the Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers, joined Devaney as an assistant in 1962. In 1965 he received his Ph.D. in educational psychology, then elected football coaching as a career. He coached the Husker receivers and helped build the NU offense into one of the most potent in the nation during the 1970 and 1971 national championship years.

While Osborne was a newcomer to the head coaching ranks in 1973, he was no stranger to Nebraska football. Osborne was a member of Bob Devaney's incomparable staff for 11 years—the last six as a key organizer of a steamroller offense.

During his tenure on the Devaney staff, Osborne headed the passing game strategy and coached the receivers. When Devaney announced his retirement from coaching in favor of full-time athletic director duties following the 1971 season, he announced Osborne as his designated successor. Osborne served as assistant head coach and director of recruiting in Devaney's final campaign in 1972, then took the head coaching reins in 1973.

An outstanding high school athlete at Hastings High School in the mid-1950s, Osborne was named Nebraska prep athlete of the year. Passing up major college offers, Osborne became a star quarterback and basketball player for Hastings College, where both his father and grandfather had matriculated. At Hastings, he played both football and basketball for Coach Tom McLaughlin, who was elected to the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame in 1982. In 1959 he was named state college athlete of the year—the first athlete in Nebraska history to win both the high school and college honor.

In 1962 he contacted Bob Devaney and secured a position as a graduate assistant on the Husker staff. He continued in that capacity until he obtained his master's degree in 1963. Continuing his dual role in education and football coaching, Osborne gained his doctorate in 1965 and, holding the academic rank of instructor of educational psychology at Teachers College, was a part-time coach.

Osborne, born Feb. 23, 1937, elected to pursue coaching full-time in 1967 and became the Huskers' receivers coach, a decision that NU fans have applauded since.

Married to the former Nancy Tederman, Osborne is the father of a son, Mike, and daughters Ann and Susie. Mike followed in his father's footsteps by playing football at Hastings College, where he was a quarterback. He is now a graduate student. □

University of Nebraska: Innovation and Excellence for America's Future

Sculpture Garden

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) is building excellence for America's future.

Nationally recognized as an innovative land-grant university, UNL is continuously designing new academic frameworks and developing new research structures that are responsive to our nation's changing needs and expectations.

To provide its students with the mental skills and broad perspectives of educated citizens, UNL has recently conducted a comprehensive, university-wide review of its general liberal education program. It has strengthened the role of humanities in undergraduate education by developing new courses stressing critical interpretation, analysis and effective writing.

Working with the private sector, UNL has become the first land-grant university in the nation to offer an interdisciplinary major in agriculture and business and has created the nation's first Franchise Studies Program. The University's innovative Nebraska Technical Assistance Center and Food Processing Center are examples of other major cooperative efforts between the state, the University and the private sector.

Rich in pioneering history and spirit, UNL was chartered by the Nebraska Legislature in 1869.

Over the years, alumni such as authors Willa Cather and Mari Sandoz, legal edu-tor Roscoe Pound, anthropologist and author Loren Eiseley, and scientists such as Nobel Prize-winning chemist George Beadle, inventor Harold "Doc" Edgerton and computer pioneer Jay Forrester have enriched the University's tradition of leadership and scholarly excellence.

Today, approximately 24,000 students from all parts of the world attend classes on UNL's campuses in Lincoln, Nebraska's All-American capital city.

The University is the intellectual center of the region. As Nebraska's comprehensive, land-grant university, UNL is committed to a tripartite mission of teaching, research and public service.

Fast rides. Lots of excitement: A day at the amusement park is a great way to get your adrenalin going. For the money, there's nothing quite like it.

Unless, of course, you're clever enough to buy Jensen® Classic car speakers or a JS car receiver.

Classic speakers give you big sound for a little price.

All the Jensen Classic speakers are compact disc ready, a feature you'd normally expect to find only on higher priced speakers. Although they're short on price, they're not short on power. Dynamic cone tweeters, long throw woofers and 2½" dynamic cone midranges (on our 6" x 9" model) give you up to 150 watts peak power. What's more, they're made in the U.S.A. and there's a model to fit any installation.

JS receivers give you features you can really use.

Any car receiver gives you plenty of features. The Jensen JS receivers have features you'll use plenty. Like Auto Reverse, Dolby "B" Seek, Scan. And 40 watts system power.

Two JS receivers even have compact disc player inputs. So, adding a CD player to your system is as easy as plugging it in.

If you're ready for thrilling car sound, but not prepared to spend a lot of money, there's only one thing to do.

Put a Jensen in your car. Turn it up. Then hang on for the ride of your life.

Programming a VCR shouldn't bring you to your knees.

You are not alone. Millions of Americans who figured a way to get through Algebra, survived Chemistry and may be considered leaders in their chosen fields, turn to a quivering mass of jelly when trying to tape "The Blob."

Because even though you spent hundreds of dollars for a programmable VCR, most manufacturers don't seem to have spent a dime's worth of time on it. The directions make tax forms look like child's play. The controls can only be reached by a Yoga master. And even after you've completed the six or seven "simple steps" needed, you can only sit back and pray you got it right.

Toshiba now has a way to program that's completely foolproof. All programming functions are displayed right on the TV screen in bright, clear computer graphics. By simply touching the screen with our unique light-pen or using the remote control, you can program anything. If you make a mistake, you can see it and correct it easily. So it's almost impossible to screw up.

All our digital VCR's also have superb sound, picture quality, and the crystal-clear special effects only digital technology can provide.

THE ELUSIVE PERFECT SEAT

by Ron Fimrite,
Sports Illustrated

A few years ago, I was asked by one of my magazine's more creative editors to seek out the worst seat in the Rose Bowl, sit there during a game and recount what, if anything, I was able to see. I was given a ticket for a seat on the 50-yard line and instructed to exchange it for the worst seat with whatever unfortunate happened to be sitting there. I was to use my own judgement in picking that seat. The editor had definitely picked the right man for the job, one who, man and boy, had been sitting in some of the worst seats in stadia across the nation, a man who knew a bad view when he saw one. The Rose Bowl is, of course, one of those places of which it is said, by ticket sellers at least, "There isn't a bad seat in the house." There was no question in my mind that I'd be able to shoot holes in that preposterous claim. There are probably bad seats in the Taj Mahal.

My only real concern was that the person sitting in the seat I deemed the worst would regard me as some kind of nut and have me hauled off by the security forces. These fears were never realized. I headed straight for what I knew from experience to be bad seat country—row one behind the end zone. And indeed, sitting in what certainly looked to be the worst seat of a bad lot was a gentleman of middle years who seemed appropriately miserable. His view of the field, if it could be so dignified, was obstructed not only by the passing parade of ushers, vendors and spectators but by two large black loudspeakers placed directly in front of him that cruelly distorted and amplified the sounds made by the bands playing miles away in the middle of the field. Even without these multiple inconveniences precious little of the game could be seen from this removed vantage point because the field sloped in such a manner as to make players at or near the opposite end zone visible only from the waist up.

"Pardon me," I said, smiling philanthropically at the worst seatholder, "I should very much like to change my ticket on the 50-yard line for yours here." He did not pause long enough to question my sanity in his speedy flight to the 50. I didn't see much of the game, although I heard much more of the bands than anyone would want to, and I got my story. Once more it had been established that even in the most scrupulously structured arenas there are seats so dreadfully situated that you wouldn't wish them upon a sworn enemy or a despised relative.

The Rose Bowl experience also provoked some further thinking about good seats and bad. It occurred to me during the game that if I had been sitting maybe 30 rows higher, that end zone seat wouldn't have been half bad. There will always be those who insist that the best seats are those high up in the end zone directly between the goal posts. I've been listening to their arguments longer than I care to remember. They go something like this: "You can't appreciate a game sitting on the 50, but in the end zone you can see those holes opening up and learn what's really going on." That may be true, but it is also true that from that spot you have no way of knowing how much yardage is being gained, and that, I must say, interests me more than holes being opened. A high seat at the corner of the end zone gives me better perspective, and, if you look hard enough, you can still see a hole or two.

The key for me is sitting high. If you're

Even sitting on the 50-yard line can have its disadvantages: When you sit low the players can block your view.

way up there, it matters less and less what yard line you're near. A good high seat gives a sense of sweep and grandeur to the spectacle of a big game. And if the action is slow, you can look around you at the scenery outside the stadium. A seat in the first few rows, even on the 50, seems somehow confining, almost claustrophobic. The sound hits you too quickly. There is too much going on. And the players themselves can block your view. The high seat does have one built-in disadvantage, though—it's not easy to get to. Climbing up 50 or 60 steps in a football stadium is not everyone's idea of fun on a Saturday afternoon. Still, sacrifices must be made, and, to me, the high seat is worth the exertion.

Sitting at the 50 can have its drawbacks, too, particularly in the lower seats where you may well find yourself in the middle of a rooting section. Performing card stunts, waving pompons and exhorting your team to "give 'em the axe" may keep perennial sophomores entertained, but there are others among us who, not to be snobbish about it, prefer to take our football with a touch more dignity. Serious students of the game find these peripheral activities irrelevant and distracting. Here again, the high seat has the advantage of being above it all, and yet not so completely removed that some of the fun doesn't filter upward. My own preference is to sit slightly off center—at about the 35-yard line, say—and about 40 or 50 rows up. From there you get the big picture.

Actually, the more I think back on that Rose Bowl adventure it seems to me that the man I traded tickets with didn't really have the worst seat in the house, after all. There were two fellows there that day who were even more unfavorably situated, although they were both close to the field and right on the 50 opposite each other. But their view of the action was even more obstructed than mine was in the worst seat and they had a lot more on their minds than I did. In fact, I don't know how those two fellows were able to follow the game at all, involved as both of them were. But head coaches don't get to see much. No wonder they habitually fend off their postgame interviews with the plea, "I won't know until I see the films." There's a consolation for you: No matter how terrible your seat is, there will be at least two guys in the stadium with a worse view. □

TURNING THE TIDE TO SUCCESS

Dave Black/FOCUS WEST

A big play on special teams can turn the tide in a close game.

One college football coach refers to it as his "third weapon," and he's not so sure that it isn't his most important.

But to most fans, things like punts, field goals and kickoffs are routine, mundane aspects of the game. Coaches, however, view them as opportunities—avenues to victory.

"Coach [Joe] Paterno feels we can win two extra games a year with good special-teams play," said Tom Bradley, the special teams coach for defending national champion Penn State.

"They're a way of making something big happen," added new Southern California head coach Larry Smith.

"In almost all special-teams situations," Smith continued, "there are four things that can occur: One, there can be a large amount of yardage exchanged; two, there is an opportunity for a big play; three, there can be a direct score; and four, there is a change of possession involved.

"In any case, special teams can provide a chance for a football team to win a game. We did a study one year at Arizona and found that nine of our 11 football games were decided by special-teams play."

Of course almost any kind of special-teams play can turn the tide in a close game—a blocked punt, a kickoff returned for big yardage, a fake field goal, a fumbled punt.

Smith's Arizona teams of the past (and possibly his USC teams of the future) specialized in the art of blocking kicks.

"One of the first things we do in practice every year is line up our players and find out who knows how to block kicks," Smith said. "Some guys just have the knack and speed and athletic ability to do it better than others. Our guys compete to see who gets to be the 10 men up front."

But even something as simple as blocking a kick can be accomplished in a wide variety of ways. One popular tactic is the overload, where the defensive unit lines up several players opposite one blocker, forcing him to make a choice. He can't possibly block everyone. If his teammates don't react quickly to pick off the extra defenders, the result is often a loud thump with the ball bounding aimlessly in the wrong direction.

Other teams try to block kicks by opening gaps in the line, much the same way that offensive linemen would for a ball carrier. Still others try to lure a blocker in one direction only to have a player delay momentarily and dash through the vacated area.

"And sometimes," added Smith, "we'll just line up five on each side and try to beat them straight up. We always line up in a 10-1 look [10 men on the line of scrimmage with one return man]. We'll run all of our punt returns from the same look."

Smith contends that the 10-1 setup not only produces more blocked punts but is also no less effective when a team is trying to get a good return.

"With the new rules, you can't block below the waist downfield anyway, so many teams are resorting to jamming tacklers at the line of scrimmage," Smith noted. "You might as well be nose-to-nose with them if you're going to do that."

While Smith's teams have stayed with the 10-1 alignment for punt returns, many others use a 9-2 or even an 8-3 setup.

"For us, it's all predicated on the punter," said Bradley, one of the nation's few full-time special-teams coaches. "If we're facing a guy who is inconsistent and kicks the ball all over the place, we need two guys back, maybe even a third as an up-man. But if we face a guy who always kicks the ball to the same place, we can get by with one man back."

Bradley admitted the Nittany Lions aren't as conscious of blocking kicks as some other teams. But they have as many as eight different punt returns in their arsenal.

Again, the type of return used is often dictated by the opponent and the type of formation it uses. There are almost as many formations for launching and covering the punt as for returning it.

Some teams will line up in a spread punt formation, with one or two men split out wide. It allows them to get downfield and reach the ball carrier quickly but also makes them vulnerable if the return man gets around the corner. It also eliminates two possible blockers if the other team is aligned in a 10-1 look.

A wing formation, with two men stationed just outside the ends and off the line of scrimmage, provides better protection against blocked punts and is easily adapted for fake punts, but does not allow the outside men to navigate their way downfield as quickly.

A third popular formation is the slot, with two backs stationed inside, filling gaps in the line. Its primary asset is that it makes it very difficult for opposing teams to block the punt. The backs lined up in the slots are in perfect position to counteract a successful overload.

Only slightly less important than punts and punt returns are kickoffs and kickoff returns.

The philosophy of Penn State and several other schools on kickoffs is based on simplicity. The Nittany Lions, for example, employ only three different kickoff returns. It's a no-nonsense, gimmick-free approach of flawless execution.

"We start off coaching those three and we stick with them throughout the season," Bradley said. "I think everybody needs to know exactly what he's doing. We want to know that a guy has made that block at least 100 times in practice before he ever does it in a game."

The one kickoff return play that almost everyone uses at one time or another is the wedge, which is nothing more than having the man with the ball dash straight up the middle of the field behind a group of blockers arranged in a V shape or wedge.

The objective for many teams is not to block every single player on the kickoff team but to gang up on the defenders at the point of attack.

"We try to create a seam for the return man," Bradley said. "We use what we call a double double-team to block the key guys."

As the ball is kicked off and sails toward the goal line, only two of the 11 men on the receiving team normally watch the ball—

the man who is going to catch it and the "wedge captain." As the ball is caught, the wedge captain gives his teammates a verbal cue to begin moving forward and executing their blocks.

Most players on the team defending against the kickoff return will run down the field in designated lanes with the kicker and usually one other man hanging back as safeties in case the ball carrier breaks loose. Some teams will modify this by using a rover scheme, where one or more players do not have designated lanes. It's a calculated gamble which often makes it tougher for the return team to plan assignments and blocking schemes.

Another tactic, used less and less these days, is to employ a wedge-buster—usually a wild-eyed individual whose job it is to race downfield and use his body as a tool to strip away as much of the ball carrier's interference as possible. A good wedge-buster can disrupt the assignments of three or four men by hurling his body into the heart of the wedge.

Despite the importance of special teams in college football, very few programs have full-time assistants devoted only to this facet of the game. Penn State's Bradley is one of the few.

"I think to put one person in charge is making a mistake," Smith said. "We tried that one year and it didn't work. It's too big a job for one man."

"At many schools there is one man who is the coordinator of special teams with each assistant coach sharing in the responsibility." □

The list excludes games in which a home team served as host regardless of its record and/or games scheduled before the season, thus eliminating the old Pineapple Bowl, Glass Bowl and Palm Festival. Here is the alphabetical list showing the record of each current major team in all major bowls.

Playing To The Beat Of A Different Drummer

by David Leon Moore,
USA TODAY

Quarterback Jimmy Segala confers with Coach Bob Westermann.

THE SILENT WORLD OF GALLAUDET FOOTBALL

Bob Westermann's hair has long since grown back. But the picture that hangs on his office wall of his Kojak-cueball haircut of November 1985 is a constant reminder of who he is and of his amazing, uplifting but largely unknown accomplishment as a college football coach.

Westermann, a burly, 35-year-old former college player, had promised his players before the 1985 season they could shave his head if they won five games. Of course, no one went right out and bought fresh razor blades, seeing as the team Westermann had just inherited hadn't posted a winning season, or even a .500 season, since 1930. That's no typo. Herbert Hoover was president and Lou Gehrig hit .379 the last time this team won more football games than it lost. Westermann wasn't worried about his hair, but he was worried about his team getting the stuffing knocked out of it.

"I was sitting on the beach before that 1985 season, and all of a sudden I got scared," Westermann recalled. "I figured we were gonna go 0-10. I knew we were gonna take some lumps, so I told myself, 'I gotta give these kids something to keep 'em going.'"

So he came up with the win-five-games-and-shear-the-coach scheme. And his players responded. Playing tougher and smarter than any team at the school in a long, long time, Westermann's gang did indeed win five games.

In the locker room after the fifth victory, the players took turns hacking at the coach's hair. Even the school president took a turn. The team's families, friends, fans and fellow students waited outside for a speech from Westermann. This was, after all, a historical moment. With a 5-4 record and just one game to play, a non-losing season—the first since 1930, remember—had been guaranteed. Indeed, a speech was in order, and Westermann delivered.

He gave it in sign language.

For Westermann was and still is the head football coach at Gallaudet University, the world's only liberal arts university for deaf and hearing-impaired students.

Gallaudet's players, many of whom were told throughout their early lives they couldn't play sports because they couldn't hear, made a loud, clear statement that day. Gallaudet's football teams would no longer be content just to take the field. Nor would they be satisfied with their football claim to fame as the birthplace of the huddle and as the place where the banging of a bass drum on the sideline, which Gallaudet's players can feel if not hear, acts as a substitute for the quarterback's "hut-hut-hut."

Gallaudet was sending a signal that, in the future, its football team would be known for winning games, too.

And that's exactly what's happening. Despite losing the last game in 1985 to finish the year 5-5, the Bison charged through a tougher 1986 schedule with a 7-4 record. And now, some of the players are even talking about making it to the NCAA Division III playoffs.

All in all, you can consider Westermann's primary goal two years ago fully accomplished.

"When I took this job, it wasn't a matter of resolving one or two things—they needed everything," said Westermann. "But primarily in my mind was establishing a concept that hearing-impaired people could win at the university level. We had to give these kids some kind of a feeling of self-esteem that they could succeed."

Rest assured, Gallaudet's players do not lack confidence.

"Some of the teams we play against think, 'Oh, Gallaudet. Easy win.' Or they think, 'Deaf people are nothing,'" said sophomore quarterback Jimmy Segala. "But we have guys on our team who are stronger than the guys on the hearing teams. Smarter, too."

Segala, admittedly cocky, embodies the confidence of his new breed of Gallaudet football players. Small (5-11, 185) but skilled, he was the only deaf student at a hearing school in South Deerfield, Mass. Yet he won 14 varsity letters—four in football, and five each in baseball and basketball. How can a guy win five letters in one sport in high school? Turns out Segala played for the varsity baseball and basketball teams when he was in the eighth grade. This is not a young man to be taken lightly.

"I am not handicapped," said Segala, who plans to play baseball this year at Gallaudet and dreams of becoming a major league pitcher.

Segala's early education was at Clark School for the Deaf, which stresses speech instead of sign language, and he can be understood with little difficulty.

Lyle Monsen, a sophomore defensive back, cannot speak. He uses sign language to tell his incredible story.

Like Segala, Monsen went to a hearing high school—Skyline High School in Salt Lake City—and was the only deaf player on his football team. As a sophomore, however, he led the team in tackles and interceptions and was voted the team's outstanding defensive player.

But as a junior, Monsen confronted another obstacle—cancer. In January of 1985, Monsen had a malignant, grapefruit-sized tumor removed from his left shoulder, and the operation required cutting some nerves in his shoulder and neck. Doctors predicted he would have only partial use of his left arm, and that his athletic career was over.

Monsen politely ignored them, playing his senior year in 1985 despite undergoing chemotherapy treatments. Last year, as a freshman starter at cornerback for Gallaudet, he had five interceptions.

"Last year was fun, but we have to keep working hard if we're going to get better," said Monsen through a sign language interpreter. "If we work very hard, we'll win more games. I want to win 10 games this year."

Gallaudet football players haven't spoken, or signed, such thoughts in a long, long time.

Yet there is some football tradition at the school, located in the shadow of the U.S. Capitol.

The first Gallaudet team was fielded in 1883, and the team generally won more than it lost. Sometime in the 1890s, a Gallaudet quarterback named Paul Hubbard is believed to have invented the football huddle.

In those days, plays were generally called at the line of scrimmage, but a deaf team ran the risk of its opponents stealing its signs. So, Hubbard gathered his teammates around him to block the opponents' view. And the huddle was born, or so the story goes.

But early successes turned to failures after a 6-1-1 season in 1930. And failure turned into apathy. Gallaudet fielded no team from 1938 to 1947. Football returned to Gallaudet in 1948, but the Bison consistently produced only one or two victories a season. That didn't change until a new school president, Dr. Jerry Lee, was hired in 1984 and decided to not only field a football team but to actually try to be competitive.

Lee didn't have to go far to find a coach. Westermann had just finished his eighth year as coach of the football team at the Model Secondary School for the Deaf, a national high school for hearing-impaired students on the Gallaudet campus. The MSSD team, which Westermann had started from scratch in 1977, had won four national deaf-schools championships and had posted an overall record of 59-16.

Before coaching at MSSD, Westermann had no training or experience in working with deaf students. He was an assistant coach at his hometown high school in Hackensack, N.J., and dreamed of becoming the head coach there.

"Then one day I read this advertisement in The New York Times," he said. "They were looking for someone with a master's degree who would initiate a football program at the high school level for deaf kids. I read that and said, 'Wow, that really sounds like a challenging type of position.' I had never even met a deaf person before in my whole life at that time. And I couldn't even imagine a deaf person playing football."

Like most of us, Westermann had misconceptions about the hearing-impaired.

"Every day, deaf kids in this country are turned away from sports, and that's really sad," he said. "Most people think, 'My gosh, how can a deaf person play football?' But once you get into an environment like at Gallaudet, you realize that deafness is no more than a communication handicap. All your fears and apprehensions fade away. The whole thing is just learning to communicate."

Westermann is always thinking about new ways to improve communications on the field. His current pet project is an electronics system that would allow his offense to call audibles.

"The most frustrating problem we have is not being able to check off at the line of scrimmage," he said. "Sometimes our quarterback walks up to the line of scrimmage and just rolls his eyes. He says to himself, 'Oh, God, we're gonna get killed on this one.'"

The cadence of a bass drum replaces the quarterback's "hut-hut-hut."

Sometime within the next couple of years, Westermann says his quarterback might wear a transmitter on his belt. The quarterback could push a button and a light would go on inside the other players' helmets. That would be the signal to run the mirror play—to the opposite direction—of the play that was called.

"We might even get smart enough to know what two lights or three lights means," he said, laughing. "On the other hand, I kind of like the philosophy of not changing the plays at the line. Our guys know that if the call doesn't look like it's gonna work, we're gonna run it anyway and we're gonna be very aggressive."

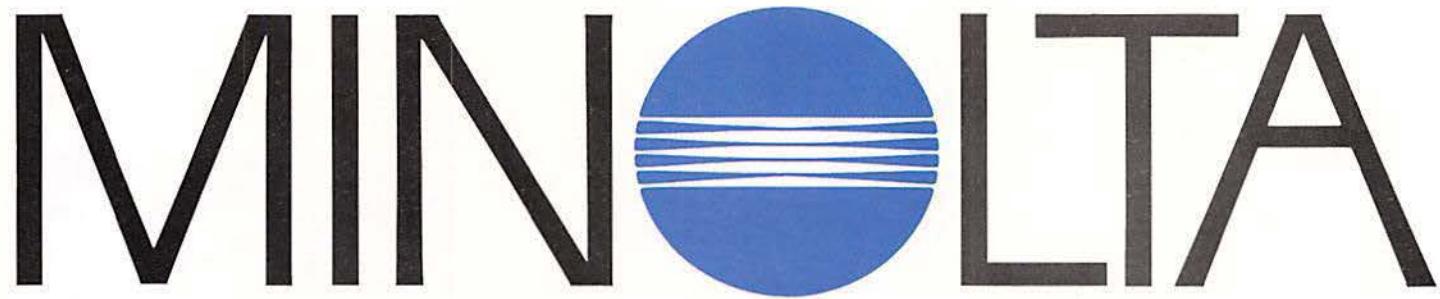

Needless to say, before Westermann took over at Gallaudet, no one was very concerned about how to call audibles. Or how to lift weights. Or how to recruit good athletes who happen to be deaf. Or even how to win.

Now Gallaudet does all of those things. And Westermann can laugh about an encounter he had on one of his first days as the Bison football coach, when a big, strong kid approached him and said he wanted to play football.

"Fine," said Westermann. "But why aren't you playing already?"

"Well, I really didn't want to be associated with the program here," he said. "It kind of stunk."

Those days are long gone at Gallaudet University, where football was born again that day in 1985 when Bob Westermann became bald. □

In all photography, light is the basic element with which you work. It determines what film you use, what apertures and shutter speeds you choose...even the lens you select. Proper lighting can make a common subject great; bad lighting can ruin the best sports shot.

Films are rated according to their sensitivity to light. Somewhere on the film canister, you'll see the letters ISO and a number from, say, 25 to 1000. That number is the film speed, and the higher it is, the more sensitive the film is to light. Generally, fast or highly sensitive filmstocks are also more grainy than their slower, less sensitive brothers. This characteristic can be used for artistic ends, but most photographers like the finer resolution of slower films.

Choosing the right filmstock depends on a number of variables. If you're shooting dune buggies at noon on the Mohave desert, an ISO 25 or 64 film will do just fine. In fact, you might have trouble using an ISO 160 or 400 film: it might be too sensitive to light, forcing you to use very small apertures or very high shutter speeds. If you're going to be shooting a football game on a dull grey afternoon in December, though, you'll need all the speed you can get, especially if you want to use the faster shutter speeds to freeze action.

If you're shooting black and white film, you've got a good deal of flexibility. B&W has a great deal of latitude: you can be off as much as two f-stops from the correct exposure and still get a decent negative. Color films, both negative and slide, unfortunately have less latitude. If you're off by more than about one-half of an f-stop, you'll begin to see a color shift.

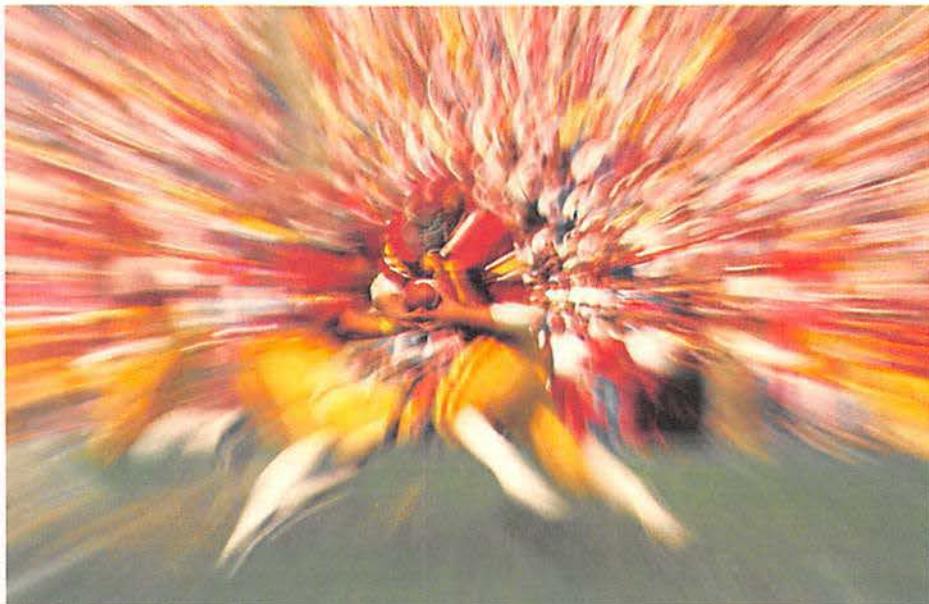

B&W has another advantage, too. The film can be "forced," or exposed as if it had an ISO rating of two or three times its actual number. Your photo lab can compensate for the forced underexposure by "push processing," or extending the developing time. (Among the color films, Kodak's Ektachrome slide film can be forced and push processed.) If the sun hides behind the clouds and you decide to force a film, remember to expose the entire roll at the forced ISO number. Since the compensation is done in the developing process, you can't correct partially forced rolls of film!

What do you do if you load a film that's too sensitive for the light conditions? The best answer is to use an inexpensive accessory called a "neutral density" filter, which mounts in front of your lens and reduces the amount of light passing through to the film. ND filters are available in strengths that reduce exposure by one to three f-stops.

While B&W film is versatile, most photographers prefer to shoot color. Color negative films, which produce prints, are available in speeds up to ISO 1000, and many have a latitude of one f-stop with acceptable results. Color positive film, used to make slides, has less latitude, but there's one filmstock—Kodak's P800/1600—that's designed to be forced and push processed. You can actually shoot this film at ISO 3200!

Sooner or later, though, you're going to be shooting indoors. If you supplement inadequate indoor lighting with electronic flash, make sure that you choose a color film that's balanced for daylight. (If you use daylight film under tungsten lights indoors, you'll notice a decided shift toward the red in all the colors.) Use a tungsten-balanced film for correct color values when shooting indoors. Fluorescent lighting is something of a problem, but using daylight film with an FL-D filter provides a pretty good answer.

THE TOUCHDOWN CLUB OF NEBRASKA

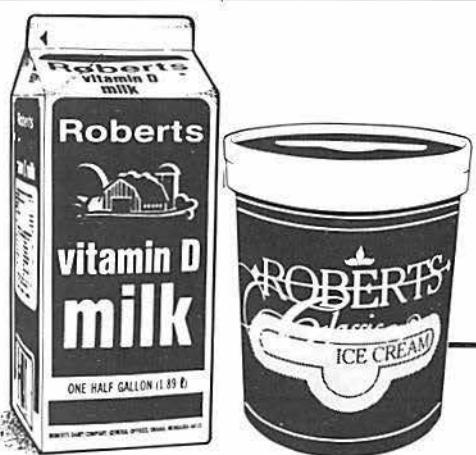

One of the groups most instrumental in helping the University of Nebraska Athletic Department grow in the field of intercollegiate sports is the Nebraska Touchdown Club.

The University of Nebraska Athletic Department salutes the many members of the Touchdown Club and takes this opportunity to say a sincere "Thank You."

BOYS CAMP I (May 29-June 2)

For boys entering the fifth grade through boys entering their senior year in high school. All campers will be grouped according to their age and ability. Each day of camp will include instruction on individual offensive and defensive techniques, team concepts, and actual game competition.

BOYS TEAM: CAMP I CLASS C2, D1 and D2 SCHOOLS (June 5-9)

This week is for class C2, D1 and D2 schools and only high school age boys can participate. Each school must have a minimum of 6 players (we recommend 8), and a member of the high school's basketball staff will coach the team during the week. Each team will have daily practice situations. There will be lecture periods conducted by the Nebraska Basketball Staff. Each school may bring more than one team and if a school would like to participate in the A, B, and C1 Camp, please feel free to do so (we recommend this if you have a talented group of players).

BOYS ELEMENTARY/JR. HIGH DAY CAMP (June 13-16, Grades 4-8)

For boys entering the fourth grade through boys entering the eighth grade. There will be a morning and afternoon session with the noon meal being provided. This is a day camp and each camper must provide for his own lodging. The morning session will begin at 9 a.m. and the afternoon session will end at approximately 3:30 p.m. Instruction will be given on individual offensive and defensive techniques as well as team concepts. Each camper will play 3 or 4 games per day.

SPECIALTY CAMP I: BIG MAN (June 9-11, Grades 9-12)

The Husker Big Man's Camp designed for the inside player will concentrate on teaching moves such as the drop step power lunge, up and under move, the baby hook, the jump hook, and the bounce step jumper. In addition, drills to improve agility, foot quickness, and jumping ability will be stressed to improve rebounding technique.

SPECIALTY CAMP II: SHOOTING (June 23-25, Grades 7-12)

The Husker Shooting will emphasize individual instruction with fundamental skills of shooting. The power lay up, the hook shot, and the jump shot will be stressed. Fundamental emphasis will be on offensive moves without the basketball, footwork for shooting quickly and efficiently, proper alignment of hand, wrist, and arm, development of proper arc, increasing range, and shooting off the dribble or off of a screen. Video analysis will be used to assist development of proper shooting technique.

I'M A HUSKER FAN!

Some fans go to great lengths to see the Huskers.

Some Nebraska football fans drive the length of the state to watch the Huskers play. When they come, they're probably listening to KRVN Radio.

They listen to KRVN for up-to-the-minute news and farm reports, weather and road conditions and easy listening country music. On those game days when they can't make the game, they listen to it on KRVN.

HUSKER ACADEMIC LEADERS

Nebraska student-athletes topped the Big Eight Conference with 127 female and male Huskers making the 1986-87 honor roll. The Huskers had 45 more athletes on the honor roll than any other Big Eight school. Kansas was second in numbers with 82, while Iowa State had 71, Missouri 65, Oklahoma State 55, Kansas State 51, Oklahoma 45, and Colorado 27.

To qualify for the annual honor roll, student-athletes must have earned a varsity letter in their respective sport and have posted a minimum 3.0 GPA during the 1986-87 academic year. Of Nebraska's 127 honorees, 21 were letter winners on the 1986 Husker football team. Those athletes include: Tom Banderas, Clete Blakeman, Mark Blazek, Chris Carr, Dan Casterline, Mark Diaz, Micah Heibel, Blake Henning, Jeff Jamrog, John Kroeker, Rob Maggard, John McCormick, John Nichols, Stan Parker, Kevin Parsons, Robb Schnitzler, Jeff Sellentin, Rod Smith, Jeff Tomjack, Tom Welter, Jake Young.

The 1986-87 academic year also saw nine members of the Husker football team earn academic All-Big Eight honors, again leading the conference. To make the academic All-Big Eight football team, a player must be among the top 44 on the team and have a GPA of 2.8 (cumulative or in the previous semester). Those Huskers named to the All-Big Eight team last year include: Ken Kaelin (3.03, Recreational Management); Dale Klein (3.74, Mechanical Engineering); Rob Maggard (3.71, Speech Communication); Marc Munford (3.02, Speech Communication); Robb Schnitzler (3.46, Pre-Physical Therapy); Brian Siebler (3.69, Math); Chris Spachman (3.06, Speech Communication); Tom Welter (3.48, Business Administration); and Brad Tyrer (3.06, Speech Communication).

Nebraska still leads the nation for first team academic All-Americans. Since 1975, NU has had 24 student-athletes receive this honor. Stanford is second with 13. Last year, Nebraska added Dale Klein and Tom Welter to the Big Red academic All-America list.

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. These are only aliases. Their real names are Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden"

Many an October has passed since the immortal Grantland Rice sat in the Polo Grounds press box in New York and penned those words while watching Notre Dame and its backfield beat Army, 13-7. It was 1924, 63 years ago, yet Granny's legendary opening paragraph is still an ink-and-newsprint homage to both the game of football and sports journalism.

Things have changed, of course. Notre Dame's Horsemen weighed an average of 157 pounds each, nowadays the average weight of Nebraska's team managers. Rice's dramatic opening, meanwhile, might be called ponderous by the current crop of writers.

And today football is covered by television as much as by newspaper reporters. No self-respecting beat writer would dare write a game story without a large handful of quotes from the principals. And they relay their stories back to their offices via word processing computers the size of a book, not by Western Union.

Times have changed since sports reporters filed their copy by Western Union; today highly paid "media personalities" use the latest technology to speed not only the results but actual game film to fans.

*When the One Great Scorer comes
To mark against your name
He writes—not that you won or lost—
But how you played the game.*

—Grantland Rice

Sportswriters are playing the game differently these days, and in the eyes of accredited journalists, they're playing it better. That's not a put-down of great writers in the past as much as it is an example of how far the medium has come.

Lyrical prose like Rice's famous lines above are an example of the style writers used to describe sports. If there's an intimacy between athletes and writers now, it can be said old-time sportswriters had an intimacy with words.

In the first half of the 20th century, or until World War II became history, sportswriters had the best jobs in the newspaper business. War or political writers had hotter stories that affected the lives of people more, but nothing lent itself to wordplay like sports. The sports section was where people could find, in one era, writers like Rice, Ring Lardner, Heywood Broun, Westbrook Pegler, W.O. McGeehan and John Kiernan, and Red Smith and Jimmy Cannon in another. The sports section was where a reader could find illuminating description, humor, sarcasm and rhyme.

There is still great writing, like the daily columns that come from the typewriters—uh, word processors—of Melvin Durslag and Jim Murray, the respected columnists for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner and Los Angeles Times, to name two. There is also Dave Anderson of The New York Times, Joe Gergen of Newsday, Frank Deford of Sports Illustrated and Leigh Montville of The Boston Globe.

But the differences between the eras are distinct.

In Rice's day, a sportswriter would arrive a few minutes before a game, keep a diligent scorebook, immediately pen his straightforward account of the game, and then pass it on to the appropriate service, like Western Union, that would telegraph it to his newspaper. "Then he'd catch up with the manager or owner and have a beer," said Murray.

Nowadays, the reporter arrives early to garner any last-minute information that might be available. He (or she) keeps a record of the game, too, then spends 30 minutes to two hours in the locker room after the game asking pertinent questions of the coaches and players.

The story will reflect a record of what happened, but it will also speculate on why and question many of the decisions that led to the outcome. And this only deals with the games. There is constant examination of a team's performance and its operation as a business.

The times often dictate the style, and the sportswriters of yesterday had a swashbuckling flair that matched the players' attitudes.

"The beat writing is better than it was years ago," said Durslag. "I think the writers today are much less corruptible than they were a while back. It's not a dig at old writers, but teams used to pay the expenses of writers and no one thought anything of it. That was the system. Newspapers have been very pious since Watergate, and it's made a difference in the independence of writers."

"I can tell the difference in an anecdote," said Murray. "Jim Brosnan, who played with the minor league L.A. Angels for four or five years, came to my house once when he was with Cincinnati. I asked him if he knew a guy who worked at the Times who covered the Angels during those years. Jim said no, that he had never met or seen the man. I found that incredible."

"In the old days, the reporter would rarely bother talking to players. The reporters today can't do that. The story nowadays is always something beyond the score."

"There's a lot more interpretive writing than there used to be," said Dick Schaap, a former newspaperman who now writes for magazines and is a commentator for ABC television. "The writers for the everyday newspaper have to speculate more and give opinions because you have television which gives fans the scores. You even have USA Today, which is like the telephone book of newspapers.

"You still have good writers who hold up the spirit of people like Red Smith. But there aren't as many."

Both Murray and Durslag are revered for the ability to turn a phrase with tongue either in cheek or sticking out at the subject of his column. Few writers today can match their spirit.

"I think there's been a decline in creative writing," said Durslag. "Few of today's good, young writers understand humor, and there were a lot more stylists in the old days than there are now. The times often dictated style and it's difficult to compare. But there was a swashbuckling attitude of many writers in that era that's completely faded."

"I read the papers uncritically when I was young," said Murray. "I used to enjoy the work of Dan Parker, who wrote for the New York Mirror, because he wrote with a lot of humor. The great writers like Rice, Pegler and Lardner all had distinct styles which stood out. I was always impressed by Lardner's grasp of the games."

"Red Smith to me was the best that ever lived. He wrote an elegant, nostalgic prose, almost an Old English style. I don't think many guys were in the same arena as he. At the same time, there was a guy at a competing paper in New York named Jimmy Cannon who was like a kid from the streets, and he had his appeal, too."

Science seems to be working out the doom of professional sports... an apparatus by which persons may see moving objects miles away by radio...

—W.O. McGeehan, 1925

Television was already a threat as far back as Rice and McGeehan's era, and most experts worried that it would drive customers away from games and turn sports into a studio event. Ironically, that's a concern today of both the sports promoter and the television network.

Television did not drive away customers. If anything, it enhanced the worldwide interest in sports events. No television event—not a political race, a Horowitz concert or the latest Broadway show—earns more advertising dollars or higher ratings than the Super Bowl. No event is more lucrative to an advertiser than a seven-game

World Series. The advent of pay-per-view television has broadened the field more than anyone ever imagined.

Besides bringing notoriety to sports and money to owners and athletes, television also wrought a change in the way newspapers covered sports. In previous eras, most newspaper stories would blankly state, for instance, that Army beat Navy, 21-20, before 90,000 in Philadelphia. The game details would be included and little else.

Newspapers now realize that most fans have, at the minimum, already heard the score. If they didn't see the game on television live, they probably saw highlights. A rehash of what fans already know isn't going to entertain readers.

"Television has diluted the power of the print media," said Durslag. "It's moved in on the coverage of events and taken away from the immediacy of newspaper. You can write 10,000 words on an event and it won't match the pictures television shows you."

"Newspapers have to change their tactics to survive. Now they strive to give the readers something television can't or won't, commentary and investigation. I can remember when newspapers used to run a play-by-play of a game. My first job in the business was to relay the plays to the office by telephone."

In his 1969 book "Jocks," Leonard Shecter mused that sports and television are one, too closely entwined since the tube is buying the telecast rights of sports events. Journalism barely exists in sports television for that reason.

There are dedicated announcers who strive for balance in what they do. CBS' Brent Musburger is a former Chicago newspaperman who is unafraid to speak his mind on the air, and NBC executive producer Mike Weisman wants to hire more announcers who have either a journalistic background or a talent for direct talk, like Bob Costas, a Syracuse graduate, and former NFL performer Bob Trumpy.

ABC's Howard Cosell, since retired, had the last show on television that attempted to bring journalism into the sports arena. His "SportsBeat" show investigated numerous issues that seemed important to sports. But the fans either found them unimportant or uninteresting, or perhaps just did not prefer Cosell's style of delivery. The show languished with bad ratings and finally expired last year.

"We can strive to do more stories, and we will," said CBS President Neal Pilson, who oversees the sports operation. "But it's silly to sit here and say with a straight face that we're going to treat things the same way newspapers do. The nature of television puts us too close to the events."

* * * *

Television brings fans closer to sports, and new technology allows sportswriters to send their stories faster. Word processing computers and a handy telephone enable writers to transmit their stories in a matter of minutes.

"In the '40s when I started," said Durslag, "we'd either call the office and dictate our stories, or type them and hand them to a Western Union or Postal Telegraph operator who would send it back to their office via Morse code."

"A few years later, the Western Union telex machine arrived and the system got a little better. The operator would type the story on his machine and it would come directly into the office. We all thought that was the ultimate."

The next step was telecopiers, large personal xerox machines that would enable the writer to type his story and send it back to a receiving telecopier without anyone retyping it. In the late '70s telecopiers began to give way to personal computers. The early models were large and clumsy. The rage today are computers the size of a large book that can hold ten long stories and relay their stories to a computer in a matter of minutes.

"I still carry a huge Olivetti portable with me when I travel," said Schaap. "It's not even electric. I guess I'm out of date." □

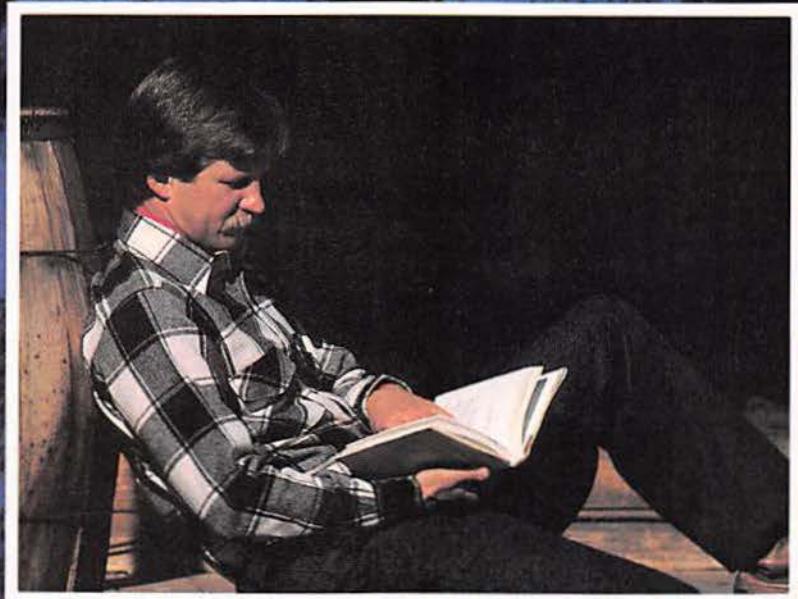

In the old days, reporters rarely bothered talking to players. Now a story would be incomplete without quotes from players and coaches.

Cornelius Bennett
University of Alabama

When Alabama outside linebacker Cornelius Bennett won the Lombardi Award last season, it was a fitting final touch for the senior three-time All-American to receive one of collegiate football's most prestigious awards.

The Lombardi Award is given annually to the nation's top lineman, whose performance and ability are combined with a willingness to make sacrifices for the team effort.

Bennett was the second pick overall in the 1987 NFL draft and was chosen by the Indianapolis Colts. He added the Lombardi Award to a long list of accolades for a senior season in which he recorded 61 tackles, 19 of which were either sacks (10 for 78 yards), or tackles-for-loss (9 for 27 yards). He was named a consensus first-team All-American this past year (AP, Kodak, Football News, Football Writers, Walter Camp). In addition, Bennett was voted the MVP of the

The selection process for the Lombardi Award results in the top 12 vote-getters being designated semi-finalists. (Bennett was among this group as a junior.) The selection committee is made up of 200 college coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters.

Four finalists are then chosen and honored at a dinner sponsored by the Rotary Club of Houston, Texas. The winner is named at the dinner. All proceeds go to the American Cancer Society, to find a cure for the disease that took Lombardi's life in 1970.

BIG-PLAY GUYS

Big-play guys know the way to any football coach's heart. Their talent knows no generation. Consider John Wysocki's astounding offensive and defensive work for Villanova in 1937 or Carlos Carson's six consecutive touchdown pass receptions—the first six he ever caught for LSU—in 1977. No one has yet figured out what makes a big-play guy.

Some, like Bob Chappius of Michigan and Hal Bedsole of USC, are marvelously gifted athletes; others, like Bill Schmalz of Western Colorado (now Western State) find a day when everything they do exceeds even their fondest expectations.

Whatever it is, coaches will take it, no questions asked. Here's what we mean:

Socko Could Do It All

His nickname was "Socko," and that is what he did to Villanova's opponents in 1937. John Wysocki, a 180-pound junior from Wilkes Barre, Pa., simply forced his way onto All-America teams that year with an incredible season in which he seemed to be a part of everything that happened.

That was the Wildcats' team of future coaches, three to be exact: Alex Bell, Jordan Olivar and Art Raimo all played on a team that won eight of nine games and tied the other. More amazing was the fact that that team allowed only one touchdown all season, in a 25-7 victory over Marquette.

But with the exception of that Marquette game, which he missed because of injuries, Wysocki was in the middle of every game—catching passes, making tackles, kicking extra points and field goals, and kicking off. In the third game of the season, for example, when the Wildcats defeated Manhattan College before more than 20,000 fans at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field, Wysocki scored three touchdowns, but the variety was something else. His first touchdown came when he recovered a punt blocked by teammate John Mellus; his second came on a 27-yard pass from Ray Stoviak; his third when he scooped a fumble by another teammate, John Kopicki, out of the air and scampered 60 yards for a score. Lucky? Who knows. After his second touchdown, his string of extra points was broken, at 22. However, teammate Andy Stopper picked up that blocked kick and ran it into the end zone, and so the point still counted.

But that was Wysocki all season, and teammates still shake their heads when they consider what he achieved. When Villanova played the University of Detroit, which had Andy Farkas, the nation's leading scorer at the time, the Wildcats won, 7-0, because Wysocki blocked a punt at Detroit's 19-yard line that set up Stoviak's fourth-down touchdown pass to Raimo. Wysocki then kicked the extra point and helped preserve that victory by tackling Ray Larson at Villanova's goal line, forcing him to fumble.

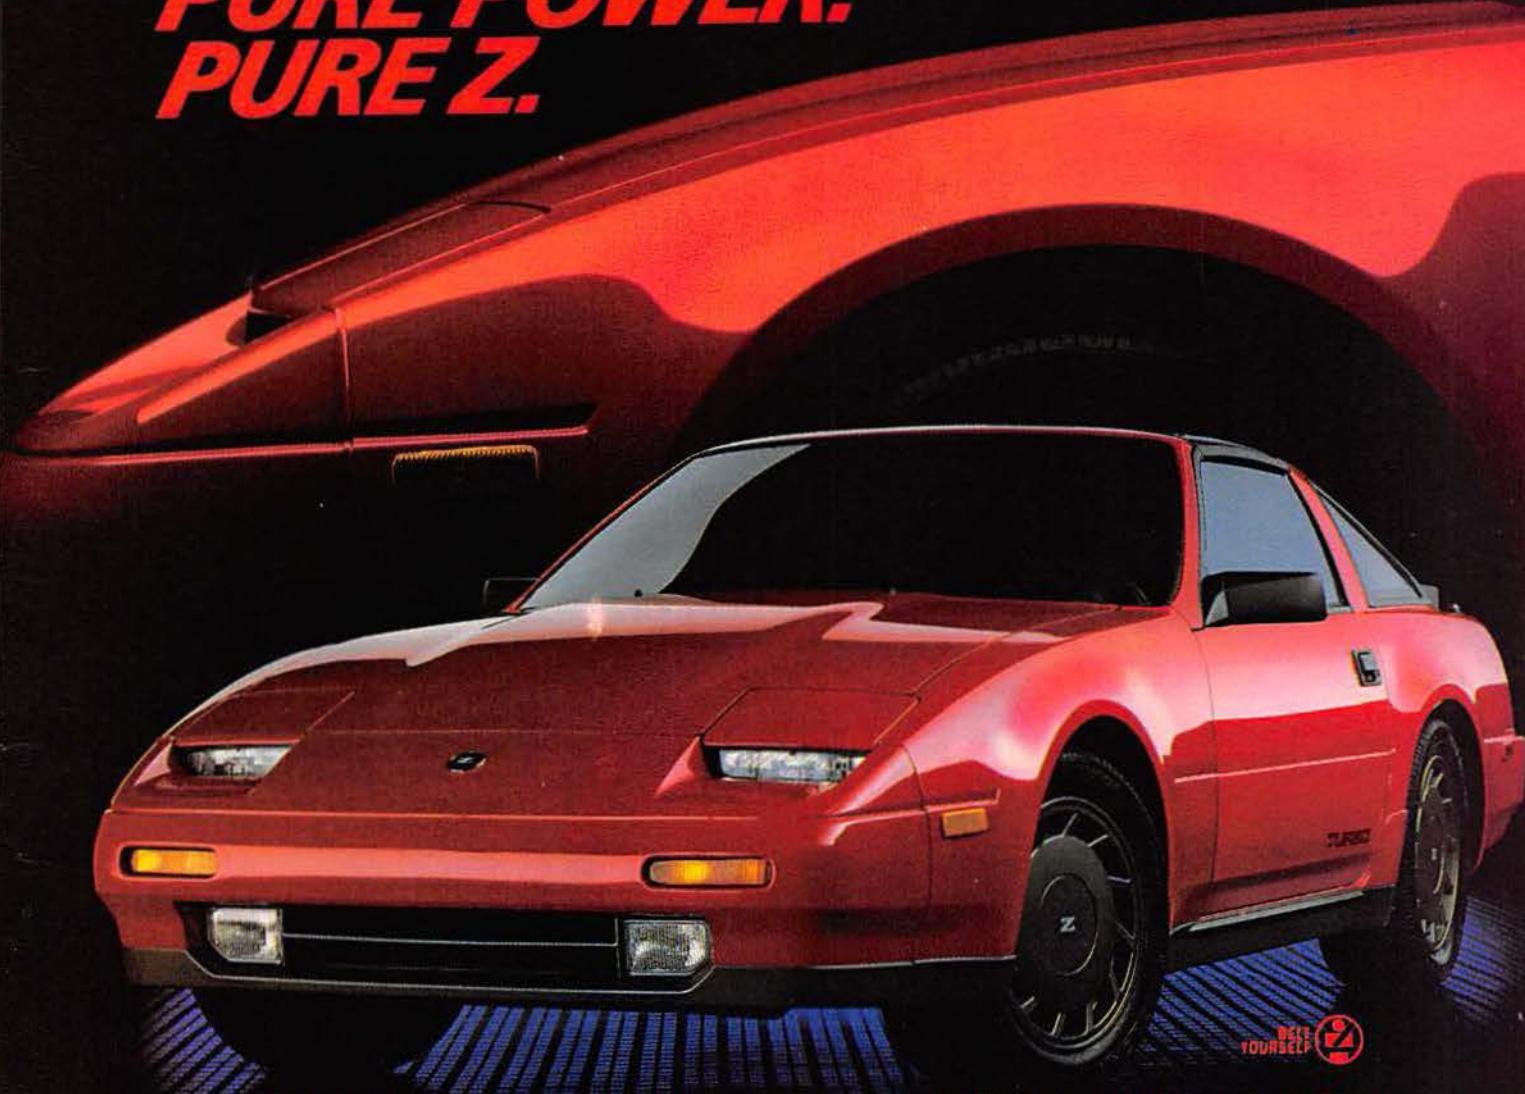

John Mellus recovered just inches from the end zone for Villanova.

Wysocki passed away several years ago after years of service to his university's athletic program. Those who saw him play still shake their heads in talking about Villanova's 12-0 win over Boston University, and particularly how good fortune always seemed to follow the Wildcats around when he made things happen.

In that game the Wildcats were tagged with a roughness penalty on a second-quarter BU punt, so the Terriers got another chance. This time Wysocki blocked the kick, scooped up the ball and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. In the third quarter he caught a 35-yard, third-down pass from Stoviak. "I don't know where we'd be without him," Villanova coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith said afterward. "Every time we need a play, he is there. Maybe once a decade you see a player who has the kind of season where he is in the middle of things, but always at the right moment. He is truly amazing."

Temple, one of Villanova's Philadelphia rivals, thought so, too. And so did the 35,000 who crammed Temple Stadium continued when the Wildcats won bragging rights to the city with a 33-0 victory in which Wysocki scored the first touchdown on a nine-yard pass from Stopper and then made key plays in setting up three of the next four

At the end of the season, he was named to the All-America team by United Press and International News Service, and then to prove he wasn't just a one-season phenomenon, he did it again in his senior season, when Villanova had another 8-0-1 season. Of course by that time everyone had come to expect great things. In 1937 he had spent the season making believers.

Michigan's Bob Chappius

Bob Chappius finished second in the Heisman Trophy balloting while leading Michigan to an unbeaten season.

In any other year Bob Chappius of Michigan would have been a runaway choice as the Heisman Trophy winner. But Notre Dame quarterback Johnny Lujack won the award and Chappius was second. Clearly, the selection committee was paying tribute to the popularity of Notre Dame's famed quarterbacking tradition. But did they perhaps fail to recognize fully what Chappius had accomplished that year?

He was the main man in Michigan's unbeaten season (they were ranked No. 2—behind Notre Dame, naturally), and was probably the country's best all-around running back in a field that included Doak Walker of SMU, Bobby Layne of Texas, Tony Minisi of Penn, Charlie Conerly of Mississippi and Lujack.

Chappius, a 6-0, 185-pounder, was the tailback in Fritz Crisler's offense. He did most of the running and passing for the Wolverines, and he did it in such a fashion that he still is ranked in seven different categories in Michigan's record book—40 years after he played his last game.

"He was a very strong runner with great agility and with very strong upper legs that helped him pound away from tacklers," said Pete Elliot, a two-season teammate and now director of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. "But even more impressive was his great competitive spirit. He thrived in big games, probably better than any player I ever saw. The tougher the game got, the better he seemed to play."

"The first really tough game we played in 1947 was against Minnesota, which had Clayton Tonnemaker and Leo Nomellini, two great linemen who are in the College Football Hall of Fame. Their line outweighed ours and it was a real slugging match, but Chap never flinched. And when it got to be late and we needed a score to win, he got it."

"Fritz Crisler was a very reserved, quiet man but Chap made one catch in that game, and Fritz came leaping down the sideline shouting, 'Way to go, Chap.' None of us had ever seen him do that before, but I guess if anyone could make it happen, it was Bob."

Chappius had started at Michigan as a freshman in 1942, but spent the next couple of years as an Army Air Force flyer. He was shot down over Italy and hidden for some time by Italian peasants, until he could get back to American territory. Friends said he went through a terrible ordeal at that time, but he survived. When he returned to football in 1946, it was like old times.

Crisler had gathered a great team after the war and had begun the move to two-platoon football. He featured speed over bulk in both his offensive line and backfield, and often the Wolverines were outweighed by opponents. It didn't matter because Crisler's Single Wing attack was one of the most deceptive offenses in football, featuring inside spinner plays by both the fullback and tailback, plus the usual array of inside power plays, except that there was at least as much speed as power. Chappius carried the ball 113 times that year and gained 419 yards, but to many he was a better passer than a runner.

His average of 16.7 yards per pass still ranks second in Michigan football history, and so do the three times in which he threw three touchdown passes in a game. He ranks fifth in TD passes, with 23, and is seventh overall in total offense, with 3,468 yards.

In 1947, when the Wolverines went on to bomb Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl, 49-0, after an unbeaten regular season, Chappius completed 49 of 86 passes for 976 yards; and in that Rose Bowl game he accounted for 279 yards by himself.

"Bob's offensive backfield, which had quarterback Howard Yerges, wingback Bump Elliot and fullback Jack Weisenburger, was the greatest group of ball handlers I ever saw," Crisler said a few years after they had departed. "All were baseball and basketball players, so there was never a day when they weren't working on their ball handling skills, either with a football, a basketball, or a baseball. It got so that even the coaches were often fooled when they got things going, so I know they dazzled our opponents."

Chappius certainly did when Michigan beat archrival Ohio State, 21-0, in the final game of the 1947 season. He ripped off 307 yards, running and passing. "That was our big game," Elliot noted, "and Chappius was ready. Heck, he was always ready."

1957

The Red Grange Of the Rockies

They called Bill Schmalz the "Red Grange of the Rockies."

In 1923, playing for Illinois, Grange scored four touchdowns in just 12 minutes and was never tackled. In 1957, playing for Western Colorado (now Western State), Bill Schmalz scored six touchdowns against Adams State and he was never tackled, either.

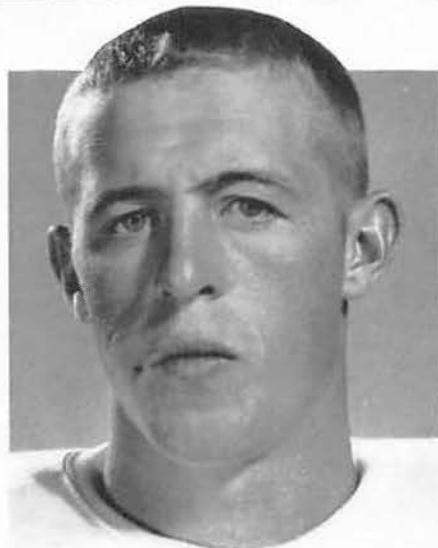

Actually he scored seven, but a 67-yard punt return was called back because of a needless clipping penalty just as Schmalz was about to cross the goal line. And, yes, he really did get tackled once on his only other carry of the day when he was pushed out of bounds.

Western Colorado won the game, 48-6, and what added a bit more spice to the story was that this was Schmalz's first start in his three-season varsity career. He was a starter only because the regular tailback, Don Miller, was injured.

"It's a bit of an irony," Schmalz said from his home in Grand Junction, Colo., where he owns two restaurants, "but I had waited three years to start a game. When I finally got the chance, I only got to carry the ball seven times."

"But," he added, "matters got a bit hectic after that because suddenly everyone wanted to talk to me. We went up to play the University of Nevada - Reno the next week, and I was like one of the show business celebrities who entertained up there. Whenever our team bus stopped anywhere on the trip, even little kids wanted to see the Red Grange of the Rockies."

Schmalz laughs about that now, but it does mean something special. He is still introduced with the Red Grange tag, but rheumatoid arthritis keeps him from any kind of athletic activity. "Sometimes people will introduce me and say, 'It's hard to believe he has problems walking because you should have seen him play football.'"

Bill, who played at 6-0, 165 pounds, was a fine player but he said he never seemed to impress his coach, Pete Pederson, enough to give him much playing time. "We didn't have any personality conflicts as far as I know, but I just didn't get much action until my senior season."

Before that game against Adams State he had gained 45 yards in 12 carries against Idaho State and carried once for five yards against Eastern New Mexico.

"He had to play me against Adams State because Miller was hurt, and I didn't do anything out of the ordinary, except that everything worked perfectly," he said. "Backs just don't score touchdowns unless other people block. And for one afternoon I had some of the most incredible blocking anyone could ask for. Don't ask me why. I know those players didn't work any harder for me than for Don."

The first time he touched the ball he ran off tackle for eight yards and a TD; then came a 13-yard run; then 20, and 36 and 59 yards . . . each time, it seemed, he got the ball farther from the end zone, but it made no difference. His last touchdown was a 10-yard pass reception. Perhaps the grandest irony of the occasion was that his feat came exactly 30 years to the day after Grange did his "clean uniform" act.

"I didn't even know what I had done until Coach Pederson called me and told me to come over to his house to answer some questions from the press because I had equalled a record set by Red Grange," Schmalz recalled. "I didn't even know what he was talking about, though after my fourth or fifth touchdown one of the officials said to me, 'Are you going to keep this up all day?'

"But I had no inkling about any records or being compared to Red Grange, though when it was done, it was a great honor."

Of course, things didn't end there. The following week against Nevada - Reno, he started his second game, scored three times, and added 121 yards in a 52-14 rout, playing only the first half. The week after that he started his third game, played just the first half again and racked up another three-touchdown, 178-yard rushing day in a 60-0 rout of Colorado College.

Not even Red Grange of Illinois had done that.

One of the Original Hot Dogs

At Southern California they called him "Prince Hal" or "Primo," as in "Primo Donna"—but they also called Hal Bedsole's plays a lot in 1962, when the Trojans won the national championship and then a spectacular Rose Bowl victory over Wisconsin.

By today's standards Bedsole would merely be considered a free spirit, because he seemed to march to his own drummer. But in an era where personal opinions were beginning to challenge established ways, Bedsole was a pioneer as he made his mark on USC football.

He came to the school as a highly touted quarterback but, by his own admission, "I didn't work; I wouldn't study films; I wouldn't do what John McKay wanted me to do. I lacked discipline."

So McKay sat him on the bench, and when Bedsole demanded to know whether he would ever be a starting quarterback, McKay flat out told him, "No!"

"I asked to be switched to wide receiver, and Coach McKay said, 'Why?'" Bedsole recalled. "I told him, 'because I want to start.' So he agreed, but warned me that if I didn't make it there I wasn't going to make it at any other position."

Bedsole, all 6-5, 220 pounds, made it all right, and he became a two-time All-America. He was the main man in Southern Cal's passing attack because he made such a great target for quarterbacks Pete Beathard and Bill Nelsen. And in 1962 he caught 33 passes for 827 yards and an all-time 25.1 yards per catch average—one that stands 25 years after he set it. He also holds the school's No. 1 ranking with his 20.9 yards per catch average (1,117 yards on 82 catches).

He was good all right, but he knew it... and part of his image was to let others know it as well. So he preened and pranced enough to get his Prince Hal monicker; and he earned the Primo Donna tag from teammate Mike Garrett because he was such a hot dog. Usually USC tailbacks are the princes of the team and get to spread a bit of mustard on themselves with their performances.

Nelsen, who was his roommate, admitted that Bedsole was "cocky as the devil, which most people saw, but he also had a very sensitive side and used that brashness to hide a basically self-conscious image."

He certainly wasn't self-conscious when he ran his pass patterns, and he became an equal-opportunity pass catcher for both Beathard and Nelsen, whom McKay alternated at quarterback for most of that 1962 season. When the underrated Trojans opened the season with a 14-7 upset of Duke, Bedsole caught the winning touchdown pass from Nelsen. A week later he got a pair of TD passes from Nelsen in a 33-3 romp over SMU.

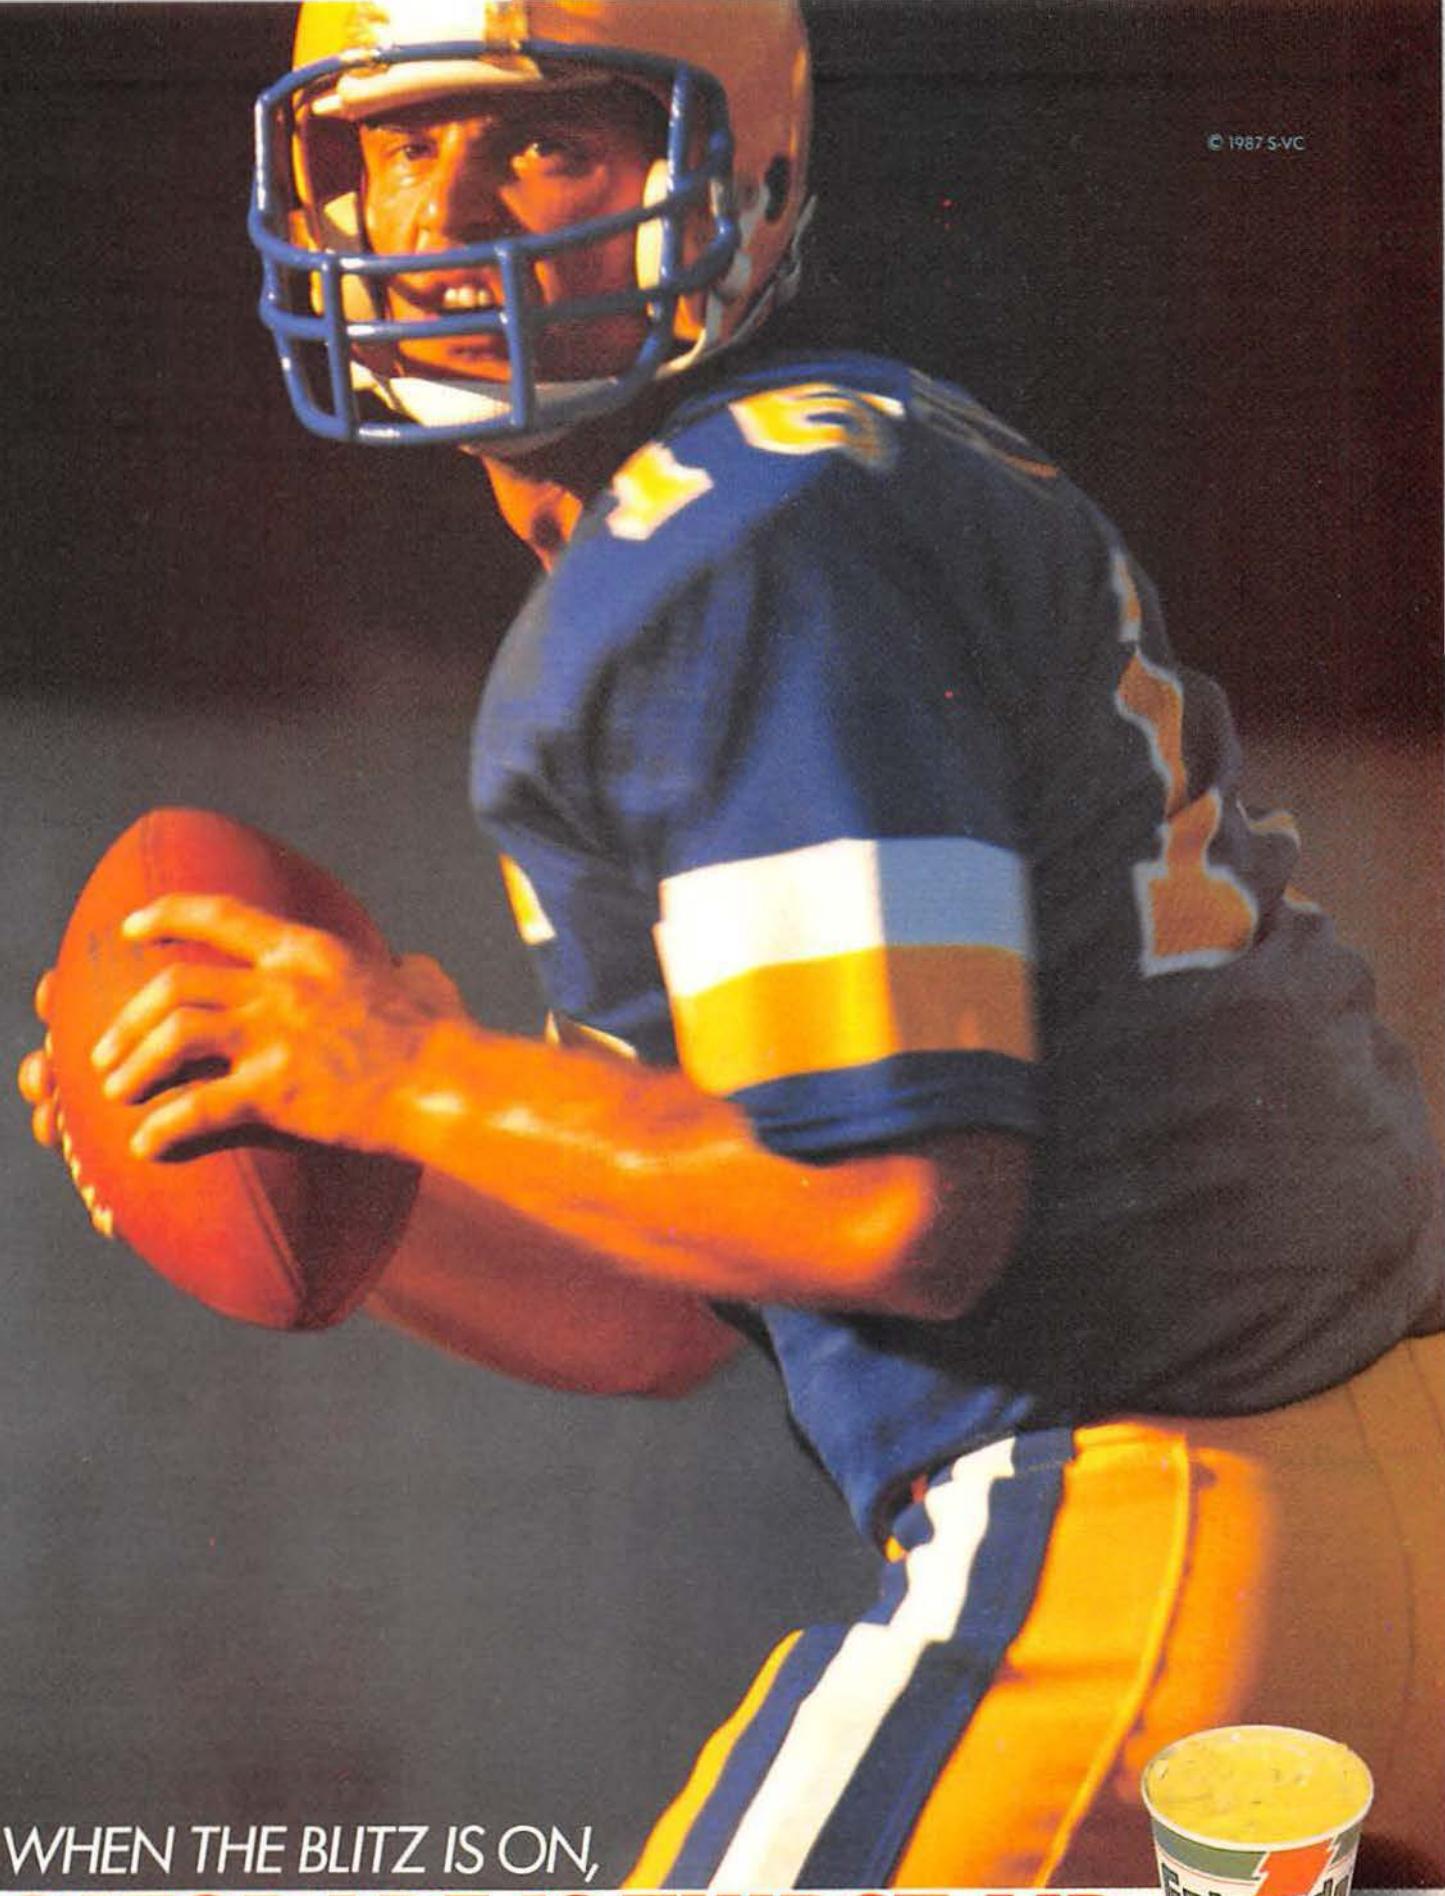

His biggest yardage day of that year came against California, when he caught six passes for 201 yards, including a 79-yard scoring pass from Beathard and one of 46 yards from Nelsen.

"I was big, but I also was faster than many wide receivers at that time," Bedsole said. "I had run a 10.7 100-yard dash in high school, and defensive backs had to cope with my size and my speed. So I got a lot of big plays. Of course, in those days I did my share of showboating and it irked some of my teammates, so I put pressure on myself to produce or really be put down."

After his undergraduate years he played professional football with the Minnesota Vikings for three years, and when he was traded to the Los Angeles Rams he retired because his knees were in bad shape and he simply didn't want to take the pounding any longer.

He still remembers that famous 1963 Rose Bowl when USC beat Wisconsin, 42-

37, and he caught four passes for over 100 yards and two touchdowns. But the one play that stands out was an over-zealous tackle on Wisconsin tight end Pat Richter, right into the Badgers' bench.

"Their guys jumped on me and pounded me," he said, "but I deserved it. I guess it helped me to grow up a bit."

Anderson Takes Buffs Bowling

Ten years after Bill Schmalz bested Red Grange's record, another young Colorado player grabbed a big piece of the national spotlight. Bob Anderson, a sophomore quarterback at the University of Colorado, became the catalyst for the resurgence of his school's football fortunes with some truly amazing and very unsophomore play.

At the time, though, Bob thought that it was great just to be able to play on the same team with his brother Dick, who was an All-America defensive back. The last time the two of them had played together, at Lakewood High School outside of Denver, they helped their school win the state championship.

When they finished the 1967 season they helped their team win the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"I really had a good deal with that Colorado team because it was a ready-made, veteran unit just waiting to achieve something," Anderson, now a security and investment counselor in Denver, pointed out. "That was the third year of a rebuilding program under Coach Eddie Crowder."

Anderson came to Colorado touted as the best quarterback ever to enter the school and the most talked-about rookie in the Big Eight that season.

"I needed a lot of work on my techniques, though," he admitted, "but I had the perfect coach in Eddie Crowder. He was so patient and thorough in explaining all of the little things that go into quarterbacking, such as the faking, the footwork and other moves that may look basic but can mean the difference between a good handoff and a bad one."

"During spring practice that year, he kept after me to release the ball higher," Anderson added. "In high school we never threw long very much and I never got to be a real good thrower. But the coach had played the position at Oklahoma, so he knew all of the techniques. And I had great confidence in him."

Anderson's confidence showed in the very first game of the 1967 season when he had the greatest day ever by a Big Eight back making a varsity debut. He hit Baylor with 212 yards, surpassing records set by the Big Eight's greatest players.

But the biggest thing he did that season was to lead the Buffaloes in a mighty, 21-16 upset of Nebraska, the first time in five years that Colorado had beaten the Cornhuskers—and the last time they would do so until 1986.

"We paid a heckuva price, though," Anderson said. "We lost seven starters on defense for our next game against Oklahoma State, and we lost [10-7]. When we played Oklahoma the week after that, we still had only a few of them back and we lost that one, too [23-0].

"But the rest of the year and, of course, the Bluebonnet Bowl, where we beat the University of Miami, was fun."

Anderson started and played nearly all of every game until the finale against Air Force, when he sprained his ankle in the second quarter and had to leave the game. His work was good enough for an 8-2 record, plus a 31-21 victory in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"I had a lot of good fortune, and a lot of hard work to get the starting job," Anderson said. "It all began the previous spring in our annual alumni game where I did a good job, and Coach Crowder let me keep going when fall drills began."

"But on the field during a game I never thought, 'I'm a sophomore, and these other guys are juniors and seniors.' On the field, we're all football players working for the same goal, so that lessens the pressure you might put on yourself to overachieve. It worked for me because I didn't make a lot of the so-called sophomore errors."

What was unique about that season was brother Dick being acclaimed All-America while kid brother Bob led the team to such success. Two years later, when Dick was en route to becoming an all-pro defensive back with the Miami Dolphins, Bob became an All-America halfback and led the team to the Big Eight title.

"I was always my brother's biggest booster, and I guess I remember every one of his achievements as well as I can recall my own, 20 years after they happened," he said. "For example, when we beat Nebraska, Dick intercepted two passes in that game, and one of them turned into a pass-lateral touchdown that wound up winning the game."

Of course in that Bluebonnet Bowl victory Bob edged Dick for MVP honors, and when both were in the NFL they opposed each other whenever the Dolphins played Denver. "The first time we played against each other was in Denver, when Miami was the visiting team," Bob recalled. "Someone asked my mother who she'd be rooting for. 'I hope it will end in a tie, and I'll be satisfied,' she said. It did, 10-10."

Carlos Carson's Scoring Onslaught

Carlos Carson always said he wanted to be remembered at LSU for more than just scoring five touchdowns in one game.

Fair enough. How about being remembered for scoring six touchdowns on six consecutive pass completions? And how about being remembered because those six touchdown catches were also the first receptions of his varsity career?

Fair enough? That's astounding!

It happened on Sept. 24, in a game against Rice at Baton Rouge, and the following week against Florida. The five against the Owls resulted in a 77-0 victory, and that TD against Florida helped LSU win, 36-14.

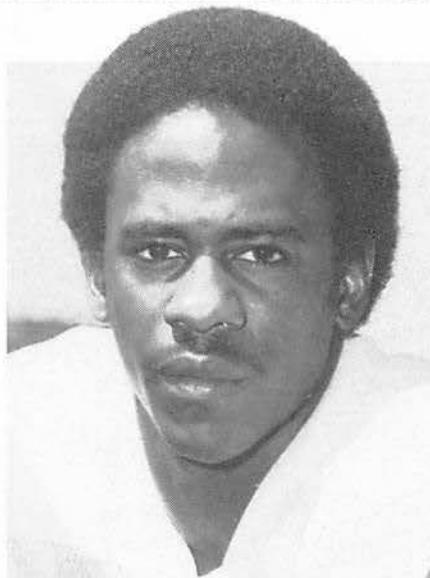

"I guess the one against Florida was the sweetest because I'm from that state and I never got any kind of interest from them when I was looking for a place to play college football," said Carson, an eight-year veteran with the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I always tried not to live in the past about such things, but I'm from West Palm Beach and I would have loved to play for Florida, or for Alabama under Bear Bryant. But I never heard from either one. It was always a great incentive for me when we played against them."

Carson found peace and contentment—and also quarterbacks Steve Ensminger and David Woodley—at LSU and allowed his talent to do the rest.

"When I caught those five touchdown passes against Rice, I didn't even know I had set any records," he recalled. "I just knew that I had a pretty good night and we won big."

In that game alone, he forced a mammoth typesetting job on the Southeastern Conference and on LSU record books.

Over a two-game stretch, Carlos Carson caught his first six collegiate passes—all for touchdowns.

Those five TD catches were worth 201 yards, a 40.2 per catch average, and they both broke 27-year-old marks set by Bucky Curtis of Vanderbilt in 1950. The five scoring catches broke the conference record of four set by Kentucky's Al Bruno that same year and tied the next season by Buck Martin of Georgia Tech. He also added a few runner-up marks for added typesetting work and got Ensminger and Woodley into the record books, as well.

Carson was an excellent all-around receiver, not just a big-play guy. He was 5-10 and 170 pounds, but he possessed 4.3 speed in the 40-yard dash.

"The speed helped in that five-touchdown game," he said, "but so did a cornerback who played too close to the line of scrimmage, and I was able to blow past him. His name was Rickey Thomas and he was just a freshman, playing in his third game. I faced him a couple of years later and he was much tougher then."

"But I also have to give the quarterbacks some credit because they laid the ball right into my hands. I don't think I even broke stride on any of the catches. It was the same way in the Florida game when I got the sixth straight touchdown pass, but perhaps a harder catch because they were looking for me. To score on my first catch in a game where I knew I was a marked man really made the record worthwhile. It was no cheapie."

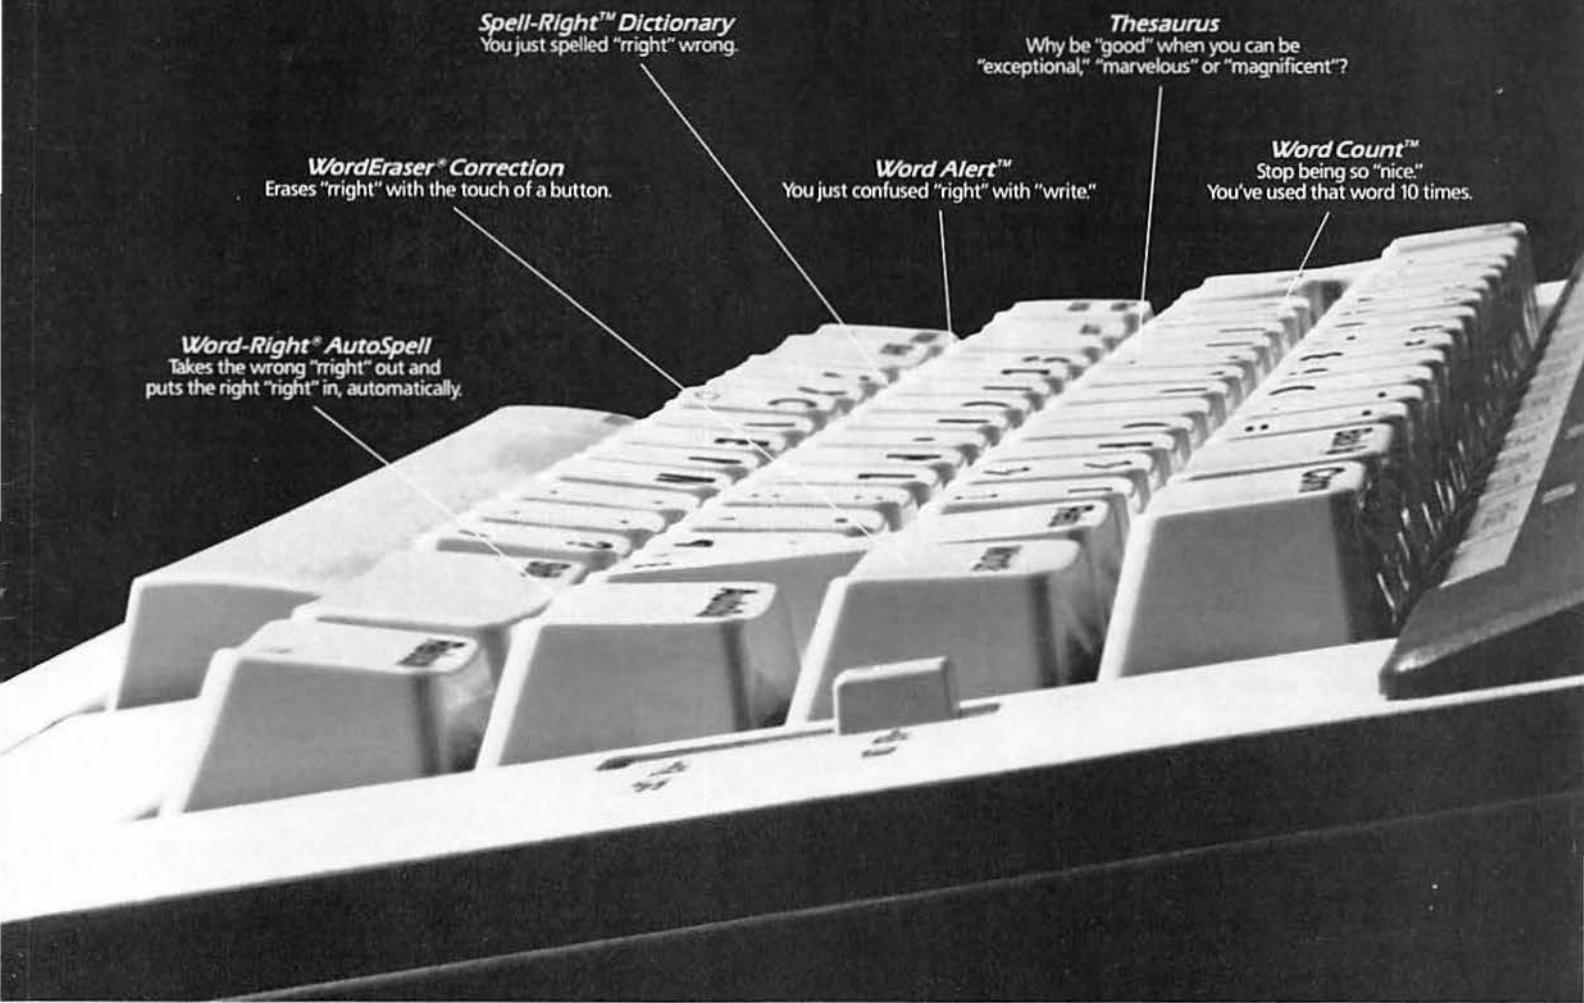

The five TDs against Rice went for 22, 29, 63, 20 and 67 yards; and the one against Florida was for 15 yards. All of that went toward his sophomore season record of 10 touchdown passes, 552 yards on just 23 catches for a gaudy, 24-yard average.

"I did better than that in my senior year," Carson recalled. "My touchdowns were down but my yardage was up, which meant I made season-long contributions. That was almost as satisfying as those six straight touchdown passes."

Indeed, Carson's senior season, in which he caught 39 passes for 608 yards, ranks eighth overall in LSU history. His career record of 1,728 yards for a 19.4 average and 14 touchdowns is third all-time for the Bengals.

"You only get one streak like that in a lifetime, I guess," Carson added. "Mine came early. But I sure wouldn't mind another one before I leave this game." □

KERZINSKY FOR THE KICK

by T. Atkinson Cobb

(with apologies to E. Lawrence Thayer)

Copyright © 1978 by T. Atkinson Cobb; used with permission.

The fans were apprehensive as they filed into their seats, The Pudville squad was worried as they laced and tied their cleats.

They hadn't won a game all year though fiercely they had fought, And this game with mighty Placerville was not a pleasant thought. The Pudville men were short and thin as football players go, While Placerville was big and mean—a most impressive foe. But as the teams ran on the field, the crowd let out a cheer, For all had wistful visions of the upset of the year.

The coin was tossed, the teams aligned, the whistle, and the kick, For Placerville 'twas fielded by a speedster name of Blick. Blick took it in his end zone and headed down the side, A mighty block from Bitsko and the field was opened wide. The forty and the thirty, the twenty, ten, the score! The crowd just sat in silence, and braced itself for more. But miracle of miracles, the extra point was wide. And Pudville said a little prayer that God stay on their side.

The Pudville team was heartened by this tiny bit of fate, And though they couldn't seem to score the defense played just great. At halftime when the gun went off, six-nothing stood the score. With all the facts considered, Pudville couldn't ask for more. The second half was started but 'twas still to no avail, No matter what plays Pudville tried they all seemed doomed to fail. But with the final quarter waning on their twenty, first and ten, Pudville started playing like they really hoped to win.

A yard or two, then three or four; a ten-yard pass to Brown, One first down and then another as cheering shook the town. "What if we score?" a cynic asked. "Without a kick, that's that." And all their eyes turned towards the bench, where Kris Kerzinsky sat. Kerzinsky was the kicker and he wasn't all that great, His record for the season stood at three for twenty-eight. But Kerzinsky wasn't worried cause he never thought they'd score; Still forward drove the offense, sometimes six yards, sometimes more.

Time was running out for the Pudville team by then, The clock read twenty seconds but the ball was on the ten. Wendell gained a couple of yards, but there his effort died, Eleven seconds said the clock, "Time out!" the captain cried. McBuehler carried 'round the end but wanted for a block, They stopped him at the one-yard line; One second on the clock. But time was called and Pudville had a chance for one more play— A diving catch by Boswell was the clincher of the day. 'Twas Kris Kerzinsky's moment as he ran into the game. His time had come for infamy or never-dying fame. But many of the faithful fans began to moan their fate, For they knew Kerzinsky's record stood at three for twenty-eight. Looks of grim determination were etched on every face As the linemen took their stances and Kerzinsky took his place. The ball was snapped and Placerville came streaming through the wall, But just before they got to him, Kerzinsky hit the ball.... Oh, somewhere in this fated land, the sky is dark with gloom. There are children crying somewhere, while a prophet speaks of doom. But in Pudville, Pennsylvania, everything is really fine, 'Cause Kris Kerzinsky's record now is four for twenty-nine. □

SPECTRUM 2. WINNER IN 7 OF 10
CAR AND DRIVER TESTS, 1987.

ONE OF THE FEW ROAD MACHINES THAT PERFORMS AS WELL AS OURS.

INTRODUCING SPECTRUM 2.[®]
THE NEW STANDARD FOR HIGH PERFORMANCE RADAR DETECTORS.

Under this unit's sleek exterior lies the power of unprecedented sensitivity.

What separates Spectrum 2 from all the rest, however, is its unique warning system. A combination of an audible alarm and a numeric display — a readout between 1 and 9 that visually tells you when you have locked onto police radar and just how quickly you need to react. A photo cell automatically dims or brightens this display to make it easier to read in any light.

Spectrum 2 also boasts a micro-processor which reports a separate warning for X and K bands, allows you to set your alarm's initial response level to avoid annoying false alarms, and controls many other functions — all with the mere touch of a single button.

Or you can simply plug your unit in and drive.

This is truly radar detection engineering at its finest. And Spectrum 2 is backed by an exclusive 3 year warranty. The most comprehensive ever.

Nebraska's Trophy Winners

JOHNNY RODGERS

One of the most exciting players in the history of college football, Rodgers won the 38th annual Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding collegiate player in 1972. A two-time consensus All-America wingback, Rodgers became the Huskers' first Heisman winner as he outdistanced Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Husker teammate Rich Glover. The most dangerous player to ever wear the Cornhusker Scarlet and Cream, "Johnny the Jet" threatened to go all the way every time he touched the ball, as he averaged 15 yards per touch during his junior year, which still stands as an NCAA record. He also shares the NCAA record for the most punt returns for touchdowns in a career, seven.

MIKE ROZIER

Capped an outstanding three-year career by becoming the Huskers' second Heisman Trophy winner after a phenomenal senior season that saw him rewrite the Husker rushing and scoring record book. Outdistanced Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young to win the award after piling up a NCAA-record 929 yards on the ground in the Huskers' final four regular season games. Rozier finished the 1983 season with 2,148 yards, the second highest in NCAA history behind USC's Marcus Allen (2,342 on 403 carries in 1981). However, considering Rozier's NCAA season record of 7.8 yards per carry, he would have amassed 3,148 yards in '83 if he had carried the ball as often as Allen.

1972 Heisman Trophy

Mike Rozier became Nebraska's first NCAA rushing champion.

1983 Heisman Trophy

Johnny Rodgers broke OU's back in the "Game of the Century."

LARRY JACOBSON

Nebraska's first Outland winner, Jacobson won the trophy as the defensive left tackle on the Huskers' 1971 national championship team. A Lombardi finalist, the 6-6, 247-pound native of Sioux Falls, S.D., gathered All-America and All-Big Eight honors during his senior campaign. Jacobson also excelled in the classroom and was the top vote getter on the 1971 Academic All-America team.

RICH GLOVER

A two-time All-American, Glover capped an outstanding senior year by sweeping national honors in 1972, winning both the Outland Award and the Lombardi Trophy. Glover's Outland Award gave Nebraska the distinction of being the first school to win back-to-back Outlands, a feat that would be accomplished again a decade later by Huskers Dave Rimington and Dean Steinkuhler. The 6-1, 234-pound middle guard from Jersey City, N.J., also finished third in the 1972 Heisman balloting behind Husker teammate Johnny Rodgers and Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt.

DAVE RIMINGTON

Possibly the most decorated offensive lineman to ever play college football, Rimington became the first and only player to win back-to-back Outland Awards. As a junior in 1981 Rimington was named Big Eight Player of the Year by both wire services and won his first Outland, setting the stage for his senior year, which he capped by sweeping the 1982 Outland and Lombardi Trophies. A two-time consensus All-America center from Omaha, Neb., Rimington became the second Husker to sweep the lineman awards and his consecutive Outland honors brought Nebraska the distinction of being the only school to win back-to-back Outland Awards twice, as he duplicated Larry Jacobson (1971) and Rich Glover's (1972) feat by himself.

DEAN STEINKUHLER

Nebraska again boasted the nation's top lineman in 1983 as Dean Steinkuhler, a 6-3, 270-pound offensive guard from Burr, Neb., swept national honors by lugging home the Outland and Lombardi Trophies, giving Nebraska an unprecedented three straight Outlands and two straight Lombardis. With teammate Mike Rozier winning the Heisman, Nebraska is the only school to win the top three honors in a season, and the Huskers have done it twice, first turning the trick in 1972 when Johnny Rodgers won the Heisman and Rich Glover took home the Outland and Lombardi.

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. Then, under the New GI Bill, I'm getting another $5,000 for tuition and books.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back—up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000—or more—for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

THE GUARD CAN HELP PUT YOU THROUGH COLLEGE, TOO. SEE YOUR LOCAL RECRUITER FOR DETAILS, CALL TOLL-FREE 800-638-7600,* OR MAIL THIS COUPON.

Do you have any Famous Grouse?" asked one good friend of another. "No, I don't," he lied.

Of course, it was shameless. But consider the circumstances.

Until recently, most Americans couldn't lay hands on a bottle of The Famous Grouse. Visitors to Scotland learned in a sip or two why this deluxe Scotch ranks first in the land of Scotch. So, they would lug home their limit.

Others discovered it in London clubs and would dash to the duty-free shops for a private supply. Which, sadly, they kept private.

Now, of course, this rare bird is in America in quantities to share.

With extremely good friends, of course.

NEBRASKA FOOTBALL

The Coaches·The Players·The Experience

Big Red is a source of towering pride to Nebraskans. Nebraska Football chronicles the rise of the Cornhuskers from modest beginnings in 1890 to the national spotlight as one of the "winningest" teams in college football. Here are the behind-the-scenes stories of what it took to build a football program that has produced perennial conference titles, two national championships, and such Heisman Trophy winners as Johnny Rodgers and Mike Rozier.

168 pages, 7 x 10 inches, preface, list of championships, bibliography, 49 b&w photographs. $19.95

From bombs to plowshares: Ordnance plant site transformed

UNL's 9,500 acre Ag Research and Development Center celebrates its 25th anniversary this year.

By Mark Krasnowsky
UNL Department of Ag
Communications

Where 3,000 workers once loaded and assembled bombshells now stands one of the largest and most productive agricultural research facilities in the U.S.

The Mead Field Laboratory, now known as the University of Nebraska Agricultural Research and Development Center, celebrated its 25th anniversary this year. Today, the Center is the primary site for research programs conducted by UNL's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. It has grown from a field laboratory for animal science, agronomy and entomology researchers into a 9,500 acre complex serving nine East Campus departments and the needs of the entire agricultural community.

"Our number one accomplishment in the early years," says Warren Sahs, assistant director of operations for UNL's Agricultural Research Division, "was in alfalfa breeding and utilization." Sahs said a study at the site by William Kehr, a USDA-UNL researcher, revolutionized the dehydration industry, showing how alfalfa could be dried in windrows by natural energy from the sun, instead of being hauled to distant dehydration drums for drying.

Pioneered Laboratory

Sahs, who became superintendent of the Mead facility in 1970, was a member of the group of UNL agricultural scientists who pioneered the development of the original field laboratory. The group, dissatisfied with UNL's lone research area near Lincoln, identified the Mead site as a likely location for expanded facilities in 1958. The site was an abandoned government ordnance plant in the Todd Valley near Mead.

The pioneer group that initiated the Mead Research Center never dreamed that the center would someday witness a tidal flow of accomplishments.

Plant breeders, most notably UNL agronomists John Schmidt and Virgil Johnson, used the Mead Lab to create about 40 percent of the wheat varieties now in use.

Agricultural engineering studies of water-use efficiency have resulted in widespread use of moisture blocks and improved irrigation scheduling.

With U.S. Department of Energy funding, ag engineers also have developed the "energy integrated farm." Swine wastes are put through an anaerobic digester which produces a bio-gas composed of methane and carbon dioxide. Methane is used for heat and electricity generation, and carbon dioxide is used in the greenhouse.

Beef specialists, including UNL animal scientists Terry Klopfenstein and John Ward, have aided the cattle industry through research on feed additives and by stressing increased utilization of corn stolklage and wheat straw to reduce costs.

The Agricultural Research and Development Center employs nearly 60 full-time workers. Temporary help is hired in the summer. Eighty to 90 percent of the employees live in the surrounding communities.

At the Center's feedlot operation, manager Richard Gooding and his staff test the effects of different feeds and feed additives on the growth rates of up to 1,500 head of cattle divided into 98 separate pens.

Improve Efficiency

Both the Animal Science and Veterinary Science Departments operate specific pathogen (disease) free swine herds. Closed, clean herds are particularly useful to researchers, according to Sahs. "We eliminate as many diseases as possible. Then our experiments truly demonstrate differences in treatment because the pigs are not affected by low-level diseases."

Also at Mead, the Center's turf-horticulture division operates one of five "rhizotrons" in the United States. There, in underground structures like concrete storm cellars, researchers study plant development by viewing glass-enclosed sections of grass roots in a variety of soils.

Among other research projects, entomologists at the Center look for ways to combat corn insects, foresters study the effects of windbreaks, and climatologists look at the water requirements of various crops.

The main thrust of the Center's research is improving production efficiency, according to Sahs. "People are concerned about lowering their inputs to lower their external costs."

During the next 25 years, Sahs said, the center will continue its efforts in resource conservation, particularly in the area of groundwater protection.

"We must maintain the best possible environment for future generations," Sahs said.

Cornhusker Wheel Club 1987

Automobile dealers in Nebraska are contributing a large measure of help to the University of Nebraska athletic program through the loan of courtesy cars. Like other programs which are a part of the Cornhusker booster group activities, this project enables the Nebraska Athletic Department to make greater use of its funds.

These sports-minded dealers around the state have earned a debt of gratitude from the University of Nebraska Athletic Department. They are an important part of the "team" that includes players, coaches, administration, faculty, staff, students, alumni, Husker Educational Award group, Touchdown Club, Extra Point Club, Beef Club and the courtesy car program.

If it hadn't been for Nebraska Alumni, today you'd be sitting in this stadium.

In 1922, the executive committee of the Nebraska Alumni Association took over the task of raising funds for Memorial Stadium. The original Nebraska Memorial Association started a campaign in 1920, but was unsuccessful.

Determined to succeed, the alumni committee, led by alumni secretary Harold Holtz, '17, accepted "anything from pigs to thousand dollar checks" from donors to raise the targeted $430,000. The results were tremendous.

In typical Nebraska fashion, Memorial Stadium was paid for before it was built.
